Missile Fear?

Soviets Stay In Cuba

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet troops have been leaving Cuba in small numbers since 1962, but the wholesale withdrawal of Russians expected May 1 has not taken place.

U.S. officials think Soviet officials may have had some second thoughts about turning over operation of their anti-aircraft missiles in Cuba to Premier Castro's forces.

At any rate, there has not been any formal word either from Moscow or Havana that the missile turnover has taken place.

REASON FOR FEAR

The Russians, however, would have good reason for fear. Giving the Cubans complete control of the missiles, believed capable of downing U.S. U2 reconnaissance planes, would, in effect, give Cuba control of Soviet foreign policy.

If a U2 were shot down, the U.S. might respond with force and Russia might be called on to aid Cuba.

(From AP, UPI)

Stepped-up Communist propaganda attacks against Premier Souvanna Phouma stirred speculation in Tokyo yesterday that Pathet Lao is planning to set up a rival government in the two-thirds of Laos they control.

Meanwhile, Communist China pressed for a conference of the 14 nations which participated in the original Geneva agreements, but rejected Britain's call, which Souvanna supports, for ambassadorial talks in Vientiane.

The United States has joined France, Thailand, Laos and South Viet Nam in agreement with the British proposal against which Communist China led the opposition.

China reiterated its demand for a meeting of foreign ministers in Geneva or Cambodia to discuss the Laotian crisis in conjunction with the whole question of Southeast Asia, including the conflict in South Viet Nam.

EASE OFF

Diplomatic activity is expected to ease off until next week while results are awaited of U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk's visits to Bangkok and Saigon and the high-level conference of U.S. military men and diplomats scheduled for Honolulu on Monday and Tuesday.

Reports from Vientiane said Laotian government troops have seized the initiative in minor actions Friday on two sectors of the Pathet Lao battlefield.

Neutralist and right-wing forces are also active.

Juvenile Misjudged?

FAIRFAX, Va. (UPI) — Three juveniles were arrested by Fairfax county police Friday for breaking the windshield of an estimated 60 parked cars over the last six days.

When police asked the youngsters what the motive was for their vandalism, one replied: "Everybody thinks I'm just a no good punk."

Nicosia Riots

Cypriots Wreck British Club As Police Watch

NICOSIA (UPI) — A mob of several hundred Greek-Cypriots stormed a British-owned harbor club Friday in the first outbreak of violence of a mounting anti-British campaign throughout the island.

The mob stoned and wrecked the popular Kyrenia Harbor Club while Greek-Cypriot police were reported to have watched nearby without interfering. The mob shouted anti-British slogans and burned a coffin marked "death to the British" outside the club. The Greek-Cypriots showered stones on the building, breaking every window in the club.

No one was seriously injured. A chef and a waiter in the club, both Greek-Cypriots, were cut.

Turks Freed On Cyprus

NICOSIA (Reuters) — The release of nine Turkish-Cypriots alleged to have been recruited in London to return to Cyprus to fight Greek-Cypriots was announced Friday night by the Cyprus government.

Ulbricht Hints

Something Cooking In German Issue?

MOSCOW (AP) — East Germany's Communist boss Walter Ulbricht pledged Friday night to follow Kremlin policy and said he had come here to "discuss a number of political problems."

He hinted that some new Soviet initiative on the Berlin and German questions were in the wind when he told guests at a Kremlin banquet Premier Khrushchev tendered him.

"The policy worked out by the leadership of the Communist party of the Soviet Union and the Soviet government in the struggle for peaceful coexistence is of greatest importance for our people."

DIFFICULT SPOT

"We live in a country from whose territory two world wars were begun. It is in our country, in Germany, in the German Democratic Republic, that one must show how this policy is being applied in the most difficult spot in Europe."

Ulbricht received his usual ceremonial welcome on arrival but it seemed a shade warmer than is customary.

Sudbury II Near Goal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Island Tug and Barge announced Friday night that its Sudbury II had arrived off the mouth of the Columbia River with the disabled Nationalist Chinese freighter Tain Sing.

The Tain Sing, which was bound for Portland, lost its propeller 500 miles north of the Altona May 18.

Malaysian 'Summit' In Tokyo

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Salvador Lopez, special Philippine envoy in the Malaysian crisis, told reporters Friday night a summit meeting on the situation would be held in Tokyo in June.

Lopez also said the Philippines, Indonesia and Malaysia would formally and separately ask Thailand to verify the withdrawal of Indonesian guerrillas from Malaysia.

The Filipino envoy conferred for 45 minutes with President Sukarno.

Nickel 'Twins' Score Again

Another Copper Strike!

FLIN FLON (CP) — Two veteran prospectors are reported to have made a major copper ore discovery in the Cranberry Portage area 30 miles southeast of this Manitoba community.

Philip Bachnick and Harry Howell, both of The Pas, made the discovery on a trap line they have operated in the area for a number of years.

The two registered 36 claims May 13 and were reported to have sold options on the claims to Kenare Petroleum Corp. Ltd. of Calgary which has a mine exploration office here.

Mr. Bachnick and Mr. Howell shared in the original discovery of nickel that later was developed into the huge International Nickel company complex at Thompson, Man.

Portage has created excitement here, with at least four companies at the scene and several hundred claims staked within the last few days.

Michael Ogden, a consulting geologist for Kenare, was reported to be on the property formulating a development program.

Reports said that preliminary assays on the ore showed 18 per cent copper and .04 ounces of gold.

'Papa, Why Does Auschwitz Smell?'

'Little Me' Grim Comic Hit

FRANKFURT (UPI) — Former Gestapo comrades and victims laughed derisively Friday when defendant Oswald Kaduk denied at the Auschwitz war crimes trial that "little me" ever did anything wrong at the notorious Nazi death camp.

Survivors have labeled Kaduk the "most brutal man" in Auschwitz.

He is alleged to have burned children alive and enjoyed breaking the necks of inmates with a pickaxe.

His outburst came during testimony by Wladyslaw Fekiel, a Polish doctor and educator, in the trial of Kaduk and 21 other former guards charged with taking part in the murders of up to 4,000,000 persons in the camp during the Second World War.

"Why, there was no harassment of prisoners," Kaduk shouted, "and even if there was, the prisoners brought it on themselves."

Co-defendant Wilhelm Boger, alleged "master torturer" of Auschwitz, erupted into laughter. He laughed so hard tears ran down his sunken cheeks.

"Little me? I never hit anybody," Kaduk continued. "... well, I never used a club to beat prisoners. I used my left or right hand. I had a very strong hand."

Former inmates sitting in the spectators section roared with laughter. Boger guffawed and the other co-defendants grinned.

Grits Wave Flag

Filibuster Means Election

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's maple leaf flag proposal has stirred a wave of election speculation in Ottawa.

One backbench Liberal MP says his party will go to the people if the Conservative opposition wages a filibuster to delay action in the government's flag resolution.

For their part, the Conservatives are said to be ready and eager to battle the issue through to an election.

CALL ELECTION

Behind this element lies Prime Minister Pearson's declaration that this minority government considers its flag resolution a matter of confidence. If defeated on it, he would resign and call a general election.

Apart from the flag dispute, strong sentiment for a federal election this year has been building up among backbench Liberal MPs.

NO INDICATION

However, there is no indication backbenchers are influencing the stated position of Mr. Pearson that his government should operate as if it commanded a majority in the 285-member House and that only parliamentary defeat on a confidence issue should bring on an election.

"If we can't get our program through Parliament we might as well go to the country, find out where we stand, and see whether the people will elect a majority government," says one backbench Liberal.

GENERAL REACTION

He indicated a belief he was voicing a fairly general reaction among Liberal MPs to the slow parliamentary pace of the government's legislative program.

The Liberals now hold 127 House seats against 96 Conservatives, 17 New Democrats, 13 Creditists and nine Social Credit. There are three vacancies due to deaths of two Liberals and one Conservative.

There's more than frustration behind backbench Liberal agitation for a vote.

PROFITOUS TIME

Some argue that now is a propitious time for a government to hold an election, with the country's economy humming in high gear.

Some Liberals — and some MPs from other parties share their view — would like an election before the government's projected redistribution becomes effective and carries up their constituencies.

OPPOSITE WAY

Redistribution is an argument the opposite way among other Liberals who contend their party would gain through added urban representation if redistribution could be brought into effect before an election.

An election in 1964 would be the third in three years. On June 18, 1962, the Conservatives won re-election with only 116 of 265 seats and their subsequent defeat on a confidence issue led to the 1963 general election on April 8.

Pearson:

Place Pride In Nation

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson appealed Friday to Canadians to place their first pride and loyalty in Canada and called for understanding, tolerance and wisdom in dealing with national and international problems.

He said the need to have the British parliament amend the Canadian constitution and the "absence of certain normal symbols of national sovereignty" have helped create in the minds of strangers outside Canada and in the minds of many citizens, especially new ones, in Canada, the mistaken idea that we are not really an independent country like others.

He said it "is important to bring the external appearance of things in accord with the reality of Canada's proud position in the world."

Union Jack Becoming Key Issue

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Union Jack is shaping up as one of the most contentious issues surrounding the government's resolution for a distinctive national flag.

"The questions which are being heaped on the old banner, recognized in Prime Minister Pearson's resolution as a symbol of Canada's Commonwealth membership and loyalty to the crown, are divided into three groups.

● What legal right has Canada to legislate on the flag of another country?

● Why should there have to be official recognition of a symbol which has already been adopted through custom?

● Why was the Union Jack incorporated into a national flag resolution instead of being dealt with separately?

The experts say that the

World Tribute Paid Kennedy Through Telstar

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — The late president John F. Kennedy believed "one man can make a difference and that every man should try."

That capsule of his philosophy was broadcast Friday by his young widow Jacqueline to an international television audience from the Cape Cod he loved so well.

BIRTHDAY

This would have been the assassinated president's 47th birthday, and in recognition of the occasion an international tribute to him was carried throughout the U.S., and to and from Europe via Telstar.

Mrs. Kennedy sat in the living room of her father-in-law's summer home and softly spoke of her recollection of the late president's beliefs.

"RIGHT WRONGS"

She said her husband's belief was that "one's aim should not be to live the most comfortable life possible."

"He believed one should try to right wrongs."

Of the planned Kennedy memorial library in Boston near Harvard University, Mrs. Kennedy said: "We want this library to be so much more than just a memorial . . . to help keep alive the things he believed in and stood for."

Also on the program from Hyannis Port was Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy, a brother of the late president.

The European part of the broadcast carried comments from West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt, former prime minister Harold Macmillan of Britain, Minister from London, and Irish Prime Minister Sean Lemass from Dublin.

The other Kennedy brother, Senator Edward M. Kennedy (Dem.-Mass.) was visiting in Ireland and joined Lemass on the program from the Irish Parliament building.

The program included film clips of Kennedy's speech in West Berlin when he won an ovation with his declaration in German: "Ich bin ein Berliner" . . . "I am a Berliner."

UNDERSTOOD VISIT

Prime Minister Lemass said the president "understood very well what his visit meant to Ireland . . . He was not just the first American president to visit Ireland while in office, but that he came as a descendant of emigrants who went to America and did well there."

Senator Kennedy said his brother always had, as did many great men, "a sense of history and a sense of fate."

WORKED FOR GOOD

Mrs. Kennedy greeted Macmillan directly and said: "I know how much my husband valued your friendship because you both worked for good things."

Macmillan said he worked with the president for three years "and we were close friends from the beginning . . . We didn't negotiate but met as partners. Oh, there were plenty of laughs and jokes and I think that made the difference."

The former prime minister described two memorials to president Kennedy which are planned in Britain.

FIRST DONOR

He said Queen Elizabeth has asked to be the first donor to a fund to establish Kennedy scholarships for British students to attend university in the United States.

The other memorial in Britain is to be in Runnymede where the Magna Carta was signed . . . "a charter of freedom from which came all free government . . . everything Jack Kennedy believed in."

Bullets Rip Cottage Of Integration Chief

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (UPI) — An unoccupied beachfront cottage rented by integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King was riddled by bullets from four sides yesterday in a new outburst of racial violence here.

Two shotgun blasts shattered the windows of another integration leader's automobile, but both occupants of the vehicle escaped injury.

MIDNIGHT CLASH

The shootings followed a midnight clash that involved whites, Negroes and police. Two men were hospitalized. Authorities slapped a ban on demonstrations in hopes of heading off further violence.

King sent a telegram to President Johnson urging that U.S. marshals be sent to St. Augustine to protect the Negro community.

BROKEN DOWN

The integration leader charged that "all semblance of law and order has broken down . . . and in the last 48 hours, we have witnessed raw and rampant violence even beyond much of what we have experienced in Alabama and Mississippi."

King was in San Francisco when at least 19 shots were fired into the cottage.

NOT SURPRISED

He said he was not surprised at the incident, since the city is undergoing a "reign of terror." He vowed the shooting would not stop the current desegregation drive.

De Valera Pays Tribute

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eamon de Valera, Ireland's great old man, paid silent tribute Friday to an American president of Irish descent who would have been 47 years old if he had lived.

The 81-year-old president stood, his black hornburg pressed to his heart, before the grave of the late president Kennedy, while a bugle sounded the Last Post. His huge wreath of white carnations framed the eternal flame on Kennedy's grave.

MPs 'Won't Touch 'Em'

Mather Anti-Tobacco Bill Talked Out by Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — Barry Mather, the indefatigable non-smoker from New Westminster, lost a big round Friday in his campaign against what he calls cigarette disease.

The bill of the New Democratic Party MP "to restrain the use of tobacco" was talked out by the Commons and is unlikely to see the light of day again at this session of Parliament.

KICKED HABIT

Mr. Mather, a former pack-a-day man who kicked the habit 30 years ago, told a reporter he will certainly introduce his bill again at the next session.

When he was a columnist for the Vancouver Sun, Mr. Mather used to give out "never-touch-'em" buttons to persons who quit smoking.

NOVEL ARGUMENT

In the Commons debate, Mr. Mather introduced a novel argument besides the usual ones concerning health.

He said a non-smoker lives longer than a cigarette smoker and therefore can be taxed longer. Thus, the government should not worry about any revenue lost from taxes on cigarettes.

TAXABLE LONGER

"If you live longer, you're taxable longer," Mr. Mather said with a straight face.

He said if the argument were used that the tobacco industry would be hurt by his bill, opium dealers should be able to make the same claim against regulations to control narcotics.

But Mr. Mather didn't find a single supporter among the other speakers.

INTERFERENCE

Jack Roxburgh, Liberal MP from the Ontario tobacco-growing riding of Norfolk, said the bill would mean interference by the government in the affairs of the law-abiding tobacco industry.

Everyone Gets Different Answer For Cost of Gallon of Gasoline

VANCOUVER (CP) — Almost everybody at Friday's sitting of the royal commission on gasoline prices tried to figure out the refinery cost of a gallon of gasoline.

And they all came up with different answers, with two witnesses trying to figure it out by using milking cows and butcher steers.

SIX METHODS

Imperial Oil Company, after listing six different accounting methods of figuring the cost of a gallon of gas, finally declared it was impossible to determine precisely.

A. D. Stanley, an independent Vancouver chartered accountant, spoke of a theoretical cow yielding 40 per cent cream and 60 per cent skim milk to prove that "joint product costing is an enigma."

GAVE UP

He, too, finally gave up, saying the cost couldn't be figured out exactly.

Cyril Sheldford, Social Credit MLA for Omineca, who sparked the probe, took up the train of thought and cited an 800-pound steer that would cut into meat costing 64 cents a pound "trotting in your locker, whether it's steak or hamburger."

Commissioner C. W. Morrow took a crack at it.

AVERAGE COST

Using Imperial's nearby Inco refinery as an example, he said the average cost of producing a gallon of gasoline would be 13.88 cents compared with the posted tankwagon price at Vancouver of 19.7 cents.

" . . . If these figures are accurate, there is an initial profit of six cents to start with?" he asked Imperial spokesman D. H. MacAllan.

SALES TAXES

No, replied Mr. MacAllan, adding that distribution costs, sales taxes and other oil products are not included.

"In each of these methods, you have to separate between all other products and gas so that you can't ascribe any validity to any one of those numbers without also accepting the numbers for each other product," he said. "Have I completely confused the issue?"

"Well, no," replied the judge. "I was trying to justify the 19.7 rate as being a fair one . . . that's all I'm interested in, as long as you people are competing."

The hearing was adjourned.

When your family is young . . .

their security is completely in your hands. Here are two Confederation Life Plans that provide the help every young father needs:

Confederation Life's Whole Life Plan

This plan protects your family at very low cost—provides the amount of money you choose as a lump sum or monthly income, or both. It builds substantial cash values and earns profitable dividends. For instance, a $10,000 Whole Life Policy begun at age 25 will have a cash value at age 65 of $5,640. Dividends, if left to accumulate at current scales, would provide an additional $7,230. Together, a $12,870 return on an investment of about $6,100! A tidy profit—over and above the security it gives your family!

The Family Protection Benefit

This is an economical means of providing extra income for your family. You add it to a permanent insurance plan, usually for as long as your children are dependent on you. It increases the amount your basic policy would pay by $100, $200, or more, per month. The premiums are low. At age 25 for example, you can add $100 a month to your family's income for as little as $18.80 per year. You get maximum protection at the lowest possible cost.

Talk to your Confederation Life man. He'll show you how Confederation Life's insurance plans can provide money at any critical time of life. Phone him today.

Park Price-Tag

FACED WITH the task of placing a fair value on Victoria's Beaver and Elk Lakes waterbed in Saanich as recreational land, the independent commission appointed for this purpose has followed the reasonable course of totalling the city's capital expenditures on the property, adding five per cent simple interest for the 58 years since Saanich was incorporated, and subtracting a small amount of revenue. The resulting price-tag is $538,000.

The commission was originally asked for the valuation, it will be recalled, because of the interest of Saanich in acquiring the property and ensuring its preservation as a park by dedicating it. But while the sum recommended is a fraction of the worth of the land if subdivided and sold to private buyers, and certainly not an extravagant return to the city on its investment, there must be some doubt that the rate-payers of Saanich or their representatives would find it attractive.

On the other hand, the commission has recommended that the land be sold to a regional park authority of the sort the provincial government is seemingly ready to encourage and aid. This puts an entirely different complexion on the proposed price, for Victoria, as a participant in such a regional grouping, would in effect at least, share the cost of the acquisition in proportion to its resources, leaving the other municipalities of the area and the province not much more than one-half of the $538,000 to bear among them.

Since Beaver and Elk Lakes are an amenity for the whole southern end of Vancouver Island, a source of enjoyment for residents of Central Saanich and Esquimalt and Oak Bay as much as for those of Victoria and Saanich, the idea of joint ownership at modest cost should have considerable appeal.

If the suggested regional parks authority fails to become a reality, however, Victoria might well consider whether an arbitrary price of more enticing dimension might not be placed on the property for sale to Saanich, bearing in mind the city's own saving in maintenance and development costs over future years.

The Dropouts

EDUCATION MINISTER LESLIE PETERSON doubts how well it would work in practice if children were legally compelled to go to school until at least 17 years of age instead of 15 as at present. This was a recommendation of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce. The minister makes the good point that if youngsters go to school, it should be to learn, and not to interfere with learning by their disinterested presence.

The problem is a vexing one, and must continue to engage the attention of Mr. Peterson and his department, the Chamber and the provincial community at large. For the 15-year-old or 16-year-old dropouts in most cases will be heading for the ranks of the future if not the immediate jobless in modern circumstances. It is not a completely consoling thought, although it may be the source of some pride, that British Columbia is a leader in the proportion of its children who take some form of higher education, and that vocational and occupational training opportunities are increasingly available to those whose bent or capacity is other than academic.

Accepting though that it is better to let the most unwilling students go to their fate in the outside world at 15 than keep them antagonistic, unresponsive and disruptive prisoners in the classroom, it would seem that the province is going just about as far as it can in educating and training this element in its school-age population until someone invents a way of leading a horse to water and making him drink.

Race to the Swift

ALTHOUGH it does not compare in length with some of the world's ocean racing classics, the Swiftsure ranks high in the esteem of yachtsmen the world over, because of the extremely testing conditions normally encountered on this 136-mile course. The southwest coast of Vancouver Island before the days of mechanical propulsion was known as the graveyard of the Pacific. The fierce winds and tidal vagaries which made the coast a nightmare for the old windjammers, are those which today test, if not the courage, certainly the skill, of the modern yachtsman.

It is the skipper with the greatest knowledge of the peculiarities of the Strait of Juan de Fuca and its ocean entrance who has the best chance of success in this annual classic for ability to read the elements is very often as important as a yacht's actual hull speed.

This year's event which starts this morning off Brochies Ledge is notable because it has attracted a record entry of 85 yachts. Several of these will be making their maiden competitive cruise, and some have been built with the Swiftsure race itself as the owners' main goal.

For many years, the contestants had the old Swiftsure lightship as the halfway marker, but two or three years ago this was removed and now a patrol vessel is anchored for the duration of the race at the spot where the old lightship kept its lonely vigil.

Nor will all the 85 entrants go the whole course. The smaller or class C yachts will confine themselves to a 72 miles course to Clallam Bay on the north shore of the Olympic Peninsula—a trying enough venture for ships of this size.

About two-thirds of the ships are from clubs of the U.S. Pacific Coast, and overall the yachts taking part range from giants like the RCN's Oriole to the mere 20-30 footers. Between them they represent an investment of many millions of dollars.

Victoria is proud to be the starting and finishing point of this magnificent sporting event.

Ottawa Offbeat

WEIRD, if not exactly wonderful, ever remain the bewildering ways of the bureaucracy. To wit:

The MP who rescued Agnes Macphail's old office furniture here on the Hill from the public works department's incinerator isn't to be allowed to buy, borrow or steal it, even as a gift for the old Ontario constituency of Grey Bruce that sent Parliament's first woman member to the House of Commons 43 years ago.

Happened this way: Harold Winch, the young-looking old socialist New Democratic MP for Vancouver East, was on his way the other day down a back corridor to the basement barber-shop of the Commons when he saw some old wicker furniture piled against the wall with an assortment of broken chairs, threadbare carpets, shattered water coolers and other discarded obviously doomed for the dump.

Now, it's one of the strange rules of public works here on the Hill that old office equipment can't be given away, even lent, much less sold. It must be destroyed, piled into an incinerator and burned.

Styles in furniture for MPs change, but whether the fashion is, let's say, "executive suite moderne," or perhaps "working politician functional," every MP gets the same.

Desk, swivel chair, phone, rug, water cooler, hot-rack, bookcase, two Canadian scullions on the walls, and for his secretary, desk, typewriter, filing cabinet and a second office phone.

The specially favored, parliamentary veterans and cabinet assistants, get a wash basin, and the creme de la politique, the ministers and party leaders get suites of two, three or four rooms with their own private lavatory.

The functional, work-a-day furniture is steel these days, just as yesterday it used to be wood. The "company's coming" or "front parlor" furniture for the comfort of visitors is leather.

And never, for either the day's labors or for "parlor" purposes, is it or has it been wicker.

That's why Harold Winch was stopped in his tracks by sheer curiosity.

Whom were the two old chairs and the ancient settee, all of wicker, from whence had they come and where were they going?

The answers were easy if a bit shocking.

The old wicker set once belonged to the Hon. Agnes Macphail who came to Parliament back in 1921 in the days when Grey-Bruce was known as "Grey South East."

Since 1940 it had been in the basement Parliament Hill office of the Ottawa bureau chief of British United Press, now United Press International.

The old veteran had retired. A new bureau chief had taken over with new office equipment.

Bureaucracy's Strange Ways

By RICHARD JACKSON
Columnist Ottawa Bureau

And Aggie's old wicker suite, like all parliamentary furniture discarded, would feed the fires of the government's central heating plant.

Straight to Public Works Minister Jean Paul Deschatelets went Harold Winch with his indignation protest against destruction of this old UFO-Labor-CCF-NDP keepsake.

An understanding man, Mr. Deschatelets ordered the unravelling wicker pieces saved from the fire.

And what then? Harold Winch said he'd buy the old set and present it, as a gift, to any historically interested public organization or association in Grey County.

But no. That was against the rules. It now wasn't to be destroyed, of course, but Harold Winch couldn't have it for love or money.

It would go into storage while officially going through the motions of being declared "surplus," and so made available for placement—by bid or tender—through the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation.

So now it's formally designated surplus, and available for the bidding, but still Harold Winch can't have it, even were he to bid enough to pay off the national debt.

For the rules say it's strictly "hands off" government property, surplus or otherwise, for MPs.

So Harold Winch is now writing National NDP Headquarters here in the capital to write Grey County headquarters to please put in a bid—even if it's only a token $1—to secure the old wicker set so it can be presented as a gift to whatever group in Grey-Bruce may like to have it.

Complicated, isn't it?—But that's the way the red tape specialists here insist it must be done—so no wonder the political pace here is full steam ahead, in slow motion.

Neither a house divided on the line of racial discrimination nor a world divided on the line of nuclear annihilation can long survive. That is what the president is saying. If that is to be his theme in the coming campaign, then even though individual policy decisions seem as in Viet Nam precariously improvised, he will be confronting the United States with the difficult and often unpopular choices that must be made.

No, take away the Red Ensign, break away from the Mother Country and we've had it. The next thing will be amalgamation with the U.S.A. and the three maple leaves will be topped by three stars! Heaven forbid.

There is more to life than money; there is truth, decency and fair play of which this minority government appears to know nothing.

he had the support of many conservative business men.

The Johnson poverty trials are the kind of shrewd non-political campaigning that Roosevelt practised so successfully. Utterly unlike in background and temperament, the two are nevertheless alike in many respects. As did his mentor, Mr. Johnson has a keen sense of the public mood and an even keener understanding of how to get a public response.

But the lesson for President Johnson in the greatest landslide in history—1936 when FDR swept all but Maine and Vermont—lies at this point not in how it came about but in what came out of it. Having carried 46 out of 48 states, Roosevelt at the start of his second term called on Congress to pass a radical reform bill—the enlargement of the Supreme Court.

He was brought to a dead stop. Although there were still 10,000 unemployed in the country, he never regained momentum in domestic legislation and he watched in comparative helplessness the drift toward the Second World War. His had been an overwhelming mandate in the popular vote. But since he had rested so largely on his personal popularity it proved to be a mandate for nothing.

In the first months of his brief presidency, John F. Kennedy understood almost too well the difficulty, if not as he once put it the impossibility, of governing under the American system of divided power. Such sombre reflections do not trouble President Johnson. And his recent speeches show that he knows the American electorate must be told what has to be done—what urgently must be done—if a mandate in the popular vote is to mean anything.

In Atlanta, Georgia, he talked about justice under law for all persons regardless of race, creed or color. It was the strongest statement on civil rights made by a president in the South in living memory. At the dedication of the George C. Marshall Library at Virginia Military Institute he spoke of the need to build bridges of understanding between East and West.

Neither a house divided on the line of racial discrimination nor a world divided on the line of nuclear annihilation can long survive. That is what the president is saying. If that is to be his theme in the coming campaign, then even though individual policy decisions seem as in Viet Nam precariously improvised, he will be confronting the United States with the difficult and often unpopular choices that must be made.

No, take away the Red Ensign, break away from the Mother Country and we've had it. The next thing will be amalgamation with the U.S.A. and the three maple leaves will be topped by three stars! Heaven forbid.

There is more to life than money; there is truth, decency and fair play of which this minority government appears to know nothing.

Waiting for Mr. Bennett

Our Readers' Views

To be considered for publication in this column, letters must be signed, dated, and must be received by the editor's office no later than 10:00 a.m. on the day of publication.

I was indeed a joy to me and I know to a lot of other people to read the words of the premier of Newfoundland, Mr. Smallwood, and also the remarks of Mr. Roblin, premier of Manitoba in regard to this question. They make no secret of where they stand with Mr. Pearson on this very important question and I know, like myself, there are a great lot of people in British Columbia who are awaiting something definite from our Premier, Mr. Bennett, on this matter.

If nothing is done in the matter then I would suggest that we eliminate the word "British" from the name of our province and simply call it "The Province of Columbia."

Safe Position

The political chicanery of the present government is something of which we should all feel ashamed. No sooner had the Liberals assumed office than an increase in salaries and allowances was effected, which I suggest was out of all proportion to the ability of many of the receivers. The object of the increase now seems clear and was obviously to ensure that the government would complete a full term in office. I suggest no political party would destroy the one that feeds you or bring down a government that has given you an overgenerous income...

This brings me to the "flag" question. I predict that Mr. Pearson will win the day and obtain the support he requires NOT because his suggested flag is the best for Canada or that members dislike the Red Ensign (Heaven forbid) but because should members defeat the government and dissolution ensue, then many will lose their fat pay packet. What

Three rousing cheers and a tiger for your terrific 24th of May (a date which used to mean something in the happy days when the far-flung British Empire policed the world) front page showing the Red Ensign (in color) and the request to the egocentric prime minister to allow the citizens of Canada to vote about the flag.

It was a noble effort but I fear it will be brushed aside even if he is flooded with 200,000 names from British Columbia alone. But even if he did allow a plebiscite and nine provinces voted overwhelmingly for the Red Ensign, he will say, as did the late great Quebec seceder, W. L. McKenzie King, "conscripted if necessary but not necessarily conscription."

If he is determined to force His Flag on Canada, why doesn't he also make "The Maple Leaf" our national anthem? Every kid used to sing it with gusto and meaning.

Botanical Flag

With regard to Mr. Pearson's botanical flag—may I point out that over by far the greater part of Canada the maple does not grow naturally—and also that, over most of the vast area where it is not to be found, it will never grow under present climatic conditions. So much for Mr. Pearson's botany.

Since there is no escaping the historical fact that the French and the British were the co-founders of Canada, or that, between them, they explored the greater part of it and made it safe for others to come—why not add the fleur-de-lis to balance the Union Jack and have done with it? There are plenty of precedents for changing a flag (the Union Jack is one) but few for abandoning one completely except in times of revolution.

But perhaps Mr. Pearson has some revolutionary change in view (we can all guess what) and his compost-heap flag is the first step in the new direction.

The Next Thing

Canada is part of the Commonwealth and the best part of her comes from the Mother Country—Britain—with her justice, fair play and decency.

I have heard it said that there are very few Britishers left now, and what do the foreigners know of the Union Jack? What do they know? Why everything. In Europe, in the whole world where there is need, there is the Union Jack which the emigrants know as well as their own flag. That is one of the reasons they are coming to Canada, knowing that she is part and parcel of the Old Country.

What do three maple leaves signify? Simply that the politicians want to know how to Quebec so they will get more votes in the next election, stay in power, and again raise their own salaries.

No, take away the Red Ensign, break away from the Mother Country and we've had it. The next thing will be amalgamation with the U.S.A. and the three maple leaves will be topped by three stars! Heaven forbid.

There is more to life than money; there is truth, decency and fair play of which this minority government appears to know nothing.

Abandoned

With reference to the story about the little dog guarding the farm which appeared in the Islander last Sunday, I may say I felt quite ill after reading it. I have discussed it with several dog lovers and they all said they felt the same way.

To our minds this dog has been abandoned and left to fend for itself in the coldest part of the winter just when she needed warmth and human companionship. Also how could she dig these bones they so lavishly supply when the ground is frozen solid? We have quick buying bones from the butchers for our dogs as they are stripped so clean of flesh that they are not worth having. No wonder the poor little dog buries them. The loneliness through the long winter days and nights must be terrible. I would say that Dorothy A. Lindell misinterprets the look in her dog's eyes when they return. It is not adoration but pleading "Do not go and leave me alone again, please." She needs to feel humble.

Does she not know that a dog loves to ride in a car or even a train or plane if it knows it is going to be with the ones it loves. There are plenty of boarding places here in Victoria for dogs. Some motels will let you keep your pet with you also.

Exhausted

I watched the most disgusting thing (to date) on TV. An important historical BBC documentary on the "Rise of the Welfare State," showing the titanic struggles of the British people under the burden of two devastating wars.

We saw Lloyd George, Stanley Baldwin, the "Bevans" and others, including Winston Churchill's great role in these events.

Why the CBC didn't "grab" this great film is a mystery, but this fine documentary was run at ridiculous speed, purposely to enable "sponsors" (sic) to interrupt every ten minutes with advertising of their products. This was execrable taste and sheer idiocy, both on the part of the advertisers and the TV station.

At one point, where poor Brits were lined up for food, a voice broke in saying, "What's cookin'? Yes of course it's bacon. Smells good." Huh! What idiocy to imagine such crude attempts would influence sales. Personally, I swore never to purchase another pound of their products.

I am sure the BBC would never allow such questionable taste or to have speeded up the film in order to accommodate ten-minute commercials.

But the amazing thing is that intelligent people stand for it day after day.

Beach Barbarians

A timely thought, which you might give space to: divide the local beaches by commercial radio broadcasting zones, so that those who wish to listen to their favorite noises might all congregate in the same area and so avoid overlapping of sounds. These areas could be staked out clearly and roped off. What a nuisance the inconsiderate beach barbarian is with his transistor!

False Title

Many people believe the United Nations organization will prevent another world war, because if it comes, atom bombs are sure to be used, so they rely on the UN to prevent the total destruction of the world.

Unfortunately the title of the United Nations is absolutely false, because they are not united. Whereas the principles laid down in the charter are magnificent, these are nullified by the nations concerned who refuse this organization the power "to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state."

All the great powers and some of the lesser ones invoke this principle whenever any resolution passed by the UN does not satisfy them. For instance the resolution against Egyptian interference with Israel's use of the Suez Canal was ignored and not enforced.

France's war with Algeria was considered within the former's jurisdiction. Russia in Hungary, Portugal in India and Africa are a few of the many instances in which the UN was ignored. Today Britain, France, Egypt are all working towards their own nuclear force. So it is very evident they have no faith that the UN will be able to prevent war. Unless we get new policies with a really United Nations we are drifting to disaster.

Flag Poll Favors Red Ensign

A nationwide survey of readers of 34 Canadian newspapers indicates that persons responding to the National Flag Poll are split sharply on the question of a distinctive flag for Canada.

The readers were asked to mail in ballots indicating their preference for the Red Ensign or for a distinctive maple leaf flag.

MAPLE LEAF

Of more than 14,000 ballots counted thus far, 10,386 favored the Ensign and 3,744 were for the maple leaf flag. In all English-speaking communities, most of those responding favored the Ensign, but the figures were just the opposite from French-speaking centres.

Toronto has plumped most heavily for the Ensign, with Toronto Telegram readers casting 7,865 ballots for it and only 1,839 for the Pearson flag. But from Montreal La Presse reported 537 votes for the maple leaf, only four for the Ensign, and four for the fleur de lis. In Cornwall, Ont., which has a heavy French population, readers of the Standard-Freeholder voted 53-51 for the Ensign in first returns.

Another community almost equally split was Ottawa, Ont., where the Times reported a 45-42 edge for the Ensign. Galt, Ont., Reporter readers voted 34 to 6 for the Ensign.

Telegram News Service

OTTAWA (CP)—A telegram to Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland from Prime Minister Pearson was tossed in as fuel to the flag fire Friday.

Opposition leader Diefenbaker charged in the Commons that Mr. Smallwood was given in the telegram information denied to Parliament.

COUNTER CHARGE

And External Affairs Minister Martin, acting prime minister, countered with a charge that Mr. Diefenbaker was trying to cause confusion and disunity on the flag issue.

Friday's flareup came after Mr. Diefenbaker asked the course the government intends to follow if the flag resolution is passed by Parliament. Would there be an order-in-council to authorize a royal proclamation to provide that the Union Jack be flown as a symbol of Commonwealth membership?

ANSWERS COMING

That question, said Mr. Martin, will be answered with all other inquiries when the flag resolution comes for debate before the House.

"What is fine," said the Opposition leader, "New I rise on a question of privilege and point out that this information which is being denied to Parliament was given to Premier Smallwood in a telegram."

QUOTES TELEGRAM

Mr. Diefenbaker said the telegram from Prime Minister Pearson, and tabled in the Newfoundland legislature Thursday, explains what the government proposes to do if and when the flag resolution is passed. It said that "the steps which would then be taken would be to recommend an order-in-council which in turn would authorize a royal proclamation to issue providing that the . . . Union Jack shall be recognized as a symbol of Canadian membership in the Commonwealth. . . ."

Why, asked the Opposition leader, hasn't this information been given to Parliament? Parliament has not been denied any information, said Mr. Martin. "In accordance with our rules any question having to do with this matter should be discussed when the subject matter is before the House."

Let's Trade Photos Khrushchev Jests

PARIS (AP)—Premier Khrushchev was quoted by a former U.S. senator Friday as saying Soviet cameras have photographed military installations from outer space and asking, apparently in jest: "Why don't we exchange such photos?"

William Benton, who walked with the Soviet leader in the Kremlin Thursday, told reporters the implication was clear that Khrushchev believes U.S. space authorities have the equipment to photograph Soviet and other military installations.

FOR 10 DAYS

Benton, 64, is a publisher and government official — currently the U.S. envoy to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, which has headquarters in Paris. He was a Democratic senator from Connecticut from 1940 to 1953. He visited the Soviet Union for 10 days as a guest of the Institute of Soviet-American Relations.

Benton said Khrushchev told him: "If you wish, I can show you photos of military installations taken from outer space. I will show them to President Johnson if he wishes."

Khrushchev did not make entirely clear whether he referred to photographs taken by Soviet spacemen on orbital flights or photos from satellites — the widely discussed spy-in-the-sky system that the Russians have said the United States is using.

Discussion of the space photographs came up while they talked about the reconnaissance flights the United States has maintained over Cuba since the Soviet missile crisis of 1962 to guard against another secret buildup of offensive missiles.

ABANDON FLIGHT

Benton said Khrushchev suggested these flights, saying: "Neither President Johnson nor I want another crisis over Cuba. This is the time for sober sense to reign."

The Soviet Union has backed Prime Minister Castro's demands that the over-flights stop. Johnson has said the flights are necessary in the absence of on-site inspection and will continue.

'Artist of Death' Boasted

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)—A witness at the Auschwitz war crimes trial testified yesterday that one of the defendants boasted of being "an artist of death."

Ex-Gestapo man Josef Klehr "boasted to me that he had become an artist of death during the squintings (fatal injections)," said Wladyslaw Fekiel, president of Poland's Cracow University and a former inmate doctor at Auschwitz.

The witness said he spent four years watching Klehr and others of the 22 men being tried for putting millions to death at the Nazi wartime camp.

"I would see Klehr and two prisoners go into the room. I saw the naked inmates lined up at the door. I saw the dead bodies in the washroom next door . . . there was only one Gestapo man in the room — Klehr — and the inmates walked in alive and came out corpses," Fekiel said.

SAVE HIS LIFE

Fekiel said he watched what happened when a fellow prisoner — ex-Polish health minister Wladyslaw Bujalski — tried to save his life by appealing to a Gestapo doctor's honor.

Dr. Bujalski, the witness testified, told the Gestapo doctor, "I am an officer and you are an officer. I am a doctor and you are a doctor."

BEST DUE

According to the witness, the Gestapo doctor smiled and said, "Yes, I know. Therefore you are the first to whom a rest is due. Please step this way."

Canada Bids to Become Most Beflagged Nation

By CARL MOLLIN

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada, a country without an official flag for most of a century, bids fair to become one of the most beflagged nations as the provinces join Ottawa in flag-making.

With the Union Jack sinister, the Red Ensign rampant on a field of verbal war, the provinces are acquiring regional banners without comparable fuss.

PROVINCES, TOO

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows four provinces have their own official flags, two are making overtures in that direction and one—Newfoundland—has a choice of two local flags.

Ontario and Saskatchewan are thinking about running up official flags and Prince Edward Island has just quietly unfurled a new one.

THREE CENTURIES

Nova Scotia has had a flag for more than three centuries. Quebec, in 1948, and British Columbia, in 1960, got theirs by simple cabinet decisions.

Manitoba, which caught up with the Red Ensign as a replacement for the Union Jack just as the former was about to pass from the national scene, is stuck with new legislation making the Ensign the proper flag for public schools.

JACK, ENSIGN, LEAF

Alberta's law as it stands will permit schools to fly the Union Jack, Red Ensign or maple leaf flag as they choose.

Prince Edward Island, celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Charlottetown Confederation conference, picked a flag for itself this spring almost without public notice. The legislature voted unanimously for a banner bearing the provincial coat of arms—an island with an English oak and three saplings for the three counties, topped by a lion.

Premier Roberts of Ontario, who says the national maple leaf flag "doesn't thrill me," announced last Tuesday in London "a distinct possibility" that Ontario will acquire a provincial flag.

The Saskatchewan Jubilee and Centennial Corporation, set up to organize celebrations for the province's 80th birthday next year and Canada's Centenary in 1967, opened in April a five-month contest for a provincial flag design.

Nova Scotia boasts the oldest flag and the only one granted by Royal Charter. The blue St. Andrew's Cross, with red lion rampant of Scotland on a gold shield in the centre, is traced to the charter of New Scotland granted in 1621.

Pearson Film Fight Flares

TORONTO (UPI)—The battle between the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and independent producer Richard Ballentine over a television film about Prime Minister Pearson continued Friday with a threat by the producer that he would invite newsmen to view and judge the disputed film.

Ballentine, president of Inter-video Productions which made the $35,000 film, Mr. Pearson in co-operation with the CBC last fall, said arrangements for the showing had not been completed. "But it will be well publicized," he vowed.

LEGAL CHARGES?

Legal charges against the CBC also were being considered, he said.

The dispute broke into the open last week when officials of the Crown corporation announced they had permanently cancelled network showing of the film because it did not meet the required technical and artistic standards.

The matter came up in the Commons when charges of interference against the government were denied by Pearson.

Ballentine asked the CBC to return the film so he could show it privately, but the request was denied.

In his reply, the producer said he would show his "slush print" of the program if he was unable to acquire the original. The spot-print in his possession is an inferior quality film used for editing purposes, he said.

Because the slush print is not technically the best film, Ballentine was hesitating about using it to disprove the CBC charges about the film. Using this print, he said, "puts me in a tough spot."

A Sooke tug operator said yesterday complaints against his proposed plan to lease a boom area in Sooke harbor have been exaggerated by property owners there.

Five people who own land along a peninsula in the harbor want a public hearing to try to stop a scheme that would allow D. A. Macfarlane to moor log booms in the bay off their properties.

The property owners claim the boom would ruin their beach, spoil the scenery, damage under-sea marine life and devalue their land.

Mr. Macfarlane told the Optimist yesterday that the boom would be moored well off shore and could not ruin any beach.

"The boom will be well off shore, and will leave lots of room for water craft of all types, and cannot spoil the beach," said Mr. Macfarlane.

"And I can't see how a log boom could possibly spoil under-sea life—it's just not reasonable," he said.

THERE FOR YEARS

As for property values, Mr. Macfarlane said Island Tug and Barge booms have been moored on the other side of the peninsula for 20 or 30 years—long before the land was even subdivided.

"That didn't stop property buyers on that side, so I don't see how it can make any difference here."

Mr. Macfarlane said only two of the five people who are complaining have so far built on their properties, and they only have summer homes.

"One of these lives in California. You can't even see the area where the boom will be from his house," he said.

"I don't see how they have any legitimate complaint."

Pupils Escape School Blast

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A gas explosion ripped through the St. Thomas Separate School in suburban Riverside Friday seconds after 150 children were evacuated from the building.

Quick thinking of the school's caretaker and a Windsor truck driver led to the children being evacuated soon after leaking gas was detected.

Familiar Sign Bows To Air Canada

The familiar Trans-Canada Airlines sign at the Government Street office will come down early next week and in its place will appear a sign reading Air Canada.

A spokesman here said last night the order for the sign had already been placed.

But even sooner that that, on June 1, if you phone for a reservation instead of the operator answering "Trans-Canada Air Lines," it will be "Air Canada."

Similarly as the old printed materials run out material bearing the new name will be pressed into service.

In Victoria, it was an ideal time for the changeover as the company is preparing to trans-

'Accident' Now Held As Murder

MONTREAL (CP)—The case of a woman whose death 2 1/2 years ago was declared accidental by a coroner's jury has turned into a murder investigation.

Police said Friday they may have even found the killer, a 41-year-old Moroccan now serving an 18-month sentence in a Zurich prison for passing counterfeit money.

Details on the case were disclosed with the return to Montreal this week from Zurich of Lieut. Maurice Vadboncoeur of the Montreal police department.

He has spent the last two years working on the case in an investigation that took him to Switzerland, Germany, France, Morocco and Italy.

Beautiful Climbers

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I had a rather pathetic letter the other day from a lady who had had her heart set on planting up a couple of clematis vines, but who had missed the boat on account of an untimely surgical operation and a prolonged stay in hospital. She wanted to know if she would have to wait a whole year, until next spring, before she could buy and start her vines.

Fortunately, she needn't wait, for clematis is one plant which is almost always marketed in pots, and because of this, they can be purchased and set out quite late in the season. The choice of species and hybrids is very large, too, and by a careful selection of varieties it is possible to have these vines in bloom from May until October.

These beautiful climbers have a reputation of being rather hard to grow. Personally, I think the difficulties in culture have been exaggerated. It is true that the large-flowered hybrids are occasionally stricken down by an infection called clematis wilt, but such cases are by no means common, and in any case the small-flowered kinds seem to be resistant to the disease, if not entirely immune.

The important thing in growing clematis is to have its roots in the shade and its topgrowth in the sun—cool feet and warm head. This isn't so difficult to arrange as it sounds; for instance, if you are using the vine to clamber up and through an old tree—which, incidentally, is a very good idea—plant on the north side and train the vine around to the sunny side.

If on the side of the house, plant close to the northeast or northwest corner so the roots are shaded by the north wall, and again train the vine around into the sun.

If circumstances are such that the clematis must be planted on the sunny side, it is best to plant a small shrub in front to shade the roots and lower stem. I think, too, that it pays to put down a big, flat stone over the roots, for you must have noticed that the underside of a stone is always cool and moist even on the hottest summer day.

In nature, it is the habit of the wild clematis (Virginia Broom, Traveller's Joy, Old Man's Beard) to scramble toward the light through or over shrubs, hedgerows and small trees, and to my mind, even the sophisticated large-flowered hybrids look better when grown in this natural way rather than trained out on a wall. In old gardens in particular, there are often old and uninteresting shrubs such as superannuated lilacs and elderly laurels which can be transformed and made beautiful by using them as a support for clematis.

Ancient and leggy hedges also can be prettied up out of all recognition by decking them with clematis. Always plant on the shaded side—the vines will make their way through to the sunny side and transform an ugly hedge into a mass of glorious bloom.

Another spot where the clematis really comes into its own is on overage fruit trees. A gnarled old apple or pear, hardly worth keeping for its fruit, can be made to cover itself with blossoms twice a year—once with fruit blossom and again later when the clematis blooms.

In planting alongside a hedge or tree, remember that your clematis roots will have a lot of competition for moisture and nutrients. Once the vine gets going, it can hold its own with the best, but it is wise to get it off to a good start by digging out a fair-sized hole and filling it up with two parts of good garden topsoil, one part very old rotted manure or rotted leaves and one part coarse sand or vermiculite, together with a cupful of bone meal and one of pulverized limestone.

ART BUCHWALD Meets a 'Wallace' Man

Green Teeth Segregate Him

WASHINGTON—Gov. George C. Wallace is a reasonable man. When he makes a point for segregation, he never attacks the Negro head-on. He always resorts to using another type of illustration.

He will say when arguing against the civil rights bill, "You may want to sell your house to someone with blue eyes and green teeth and that's all right. I don't object. But you should not be forced to do it. A man's home is his castle." Recently we had our house up for sale in Washington and what Gov. Wallace said took on meaning for us. Several people looked at the house but no one seemed to want to buy it. Then a man arrived with his wife. He was very nicely dressed, and seemed very polite. The thing that struck us about him was his blue eyes. We were just about to sell him the house when he smiled and we noticed he had green teeth!

"I'm sorry," we said as gently as we could, "but I can't sell you the house." "Is it because I have green teeth?" he asked.

"Well, if you want me to be honest, yes, it is. I promised my neighbors I wouldn't sell my house to anyone who had blue eyes and green teeth. If you had brown eyes and yellow teeth, I could do it. But you have to understand, my home is my castle."

The man turned to our wife and said, "You are the fourth person who has turned me down. It's not my fault that I have green teeth. I've tried every toothpaste on the market. I've consulted every dental specialist in the country. All they figure is that there is something in my genes. Please, won't you sell your house to me?"

"We couldn't if we wanted to," our wife said. "It isn't just because you have blue eyes and green teeth. Your wife has green teeth also." His wife spoke up. "Of course I do. Who else would marry a blue-eyed, green-toothed girl except another person with the same coloring?"

We said, "And I suppose your children have blue eyes and green teeth also?" The man said they did. "You can see the spot I'm in, can't you?" we said to him. "This neighborhood is made up of brown-eyed and white-toothed children. What would their parents say if their kids had to go to school with children with blue eyes and green teeth?"

If God wanted your children and mine to play together, he would have made their eyes and teeth the same color." "But I want to give my kids a chance," he said. "How can a kid with blue eyes and green teeth improve himself if he doesn't have an opportunity to live in a decent neighborhood, go to a decent school, and have the benefits that kids with white teeth have?"

"If it were up to me alone, I'd probably sell you the house," we said. "But if I did, the next thing you know is that everyone with green teeth would start moving in. Real estate values would tumble. Blue-eyed people would start marrying grey-eyed people and before you know it you'd have a mongrelization of the races." He said, "We don't want to marry people with grey eyes and white teeth. All we want is a decent place to live. I make a good living posing for television toothpaste commercials. I'm the one who uses Brand X. But I want my kids to do something better in life. Can't you understand?"

"I understand perfectly," we said. "But nobody else does."

SHEILAH GRAHAM Reports

Sticks to Last

John Wayne does not appear on TV. He does not cut records, or play Las Vegas nightclubs. He just makes pictures in the old-fashioned movie way. Circus World is his 20th movie, not counting those early westerns that he made at the rate of two a week. His next, In Harm's Way for Otto Preminger, to be followed by Cast a Giant Shadow from the best-selling book by Ted Berkman.

Angie Dickinson has been waiting for another good role ever since she finished Captain Newman, M.D. She may get it in Dice of God which co-stars Metro's new find, Harve Presnell and Tina Turner. There is only one woman's role in the picture. And it is important enough for the two actors to be concerned. They are asking for Angie.

There are all sorts of stories going round that Eddie Fisher and Walter Wanger are going into film production together. Eddie owns the screen rights to Paint Your Wagon and The Gouffe case which he bought when he was married to Lila. And she was supposed to star.

Rich James has this to say about his colleagues—Most actors are like irresponsible children. They are frustrated when they are working steadily, and frustrated when they are unemployed. It's always either too much or too little.

At the (National) Gallery

Canadian Treasures Prove Impressive

By INA D. D. UTHOFF

After leaving Montreal I spent a week in Ottawa and was much impressed by the new home of Canadian art treasures, the comparatively recently built National Gallery of Canada.

The spacious sculpture gallery on the main floor features some fine examples in wood, metal and stone. Leading from this into the adjacent gallery containing the Permanent Collection, we find Tom Thomson's famous canvas The Jack Pine prominently displayed along with works which have been milestones in the growth of Canadian painting from the early days.

In the smaller galleries recent acquisitions of old master and modern prints and drawings offer a rich store of study for future generations.

There was a particularly fine showing of graphics on, by International Print-Makers, of Paris. This collection of 43 intaglio prints has created special attention in 11 centres across Canada.

Exciting new techniques in print-making have helped to make the public more aware of the print as a work of art, as the print-maker must be both creative artist and skilled artisan.

Only recently has the artist been drawn from the color lithograph method of print-making to explore the exciting possibilities of the intaglio process.

That the gallery is being appreciated was shown by the number of people spending their Sunday afternoon there with their families, often of quite young children, all well behaved and interested in what they were seeing.

If an art gallery can bring art to the people like this it is certainly fulfilling its function. The entire top floor is given over to a cafeteria with a magnificent view of the city.

Many of the Ottawa artists now have their studios at some distance from the city but as I was staying in the vicinity of the Blue Barn which is now being run by a former Victorian, Duncan De Kergimereux, I was able to spend some pleasant hours with him and his wife in their charming home with attached studio.

He made a name for himself with his collages which are in great demand at handsome prices. One was shown in the spring show at the Musée Des Beaux-Arts de Montreal in April.

Three Righthanders Flirt with Fame For Little While

Three righthanders toyed with no-batters in major league baseball play last night but before they were through only one of them had won his game. One lost and the third saw the decision go to a relieving teammate.

Jim Bunning came the closest with a perfect game for Philadelphia Phillies against Houston Colts until he was out from the eighth inning.

After the first 20 Colts had gone down in order, rookie Mike White hit a double and scored on Walt Bond's single. Bunning lost his 5-0 lead in the next inning as the Colts erupted for five runs, four of them unearned, before Dennis Bennett got things under control.

Bennett came out the winner when pinch-hitter Denny Cater and Gus Triandos singled and doubled, respectively, with two out to tie the score and Cookie Rojas followed with a triple—his fourth hit of the game.

Victory pushed the Phillies back into the National League lead.

Jack Sanford of the San Francisco Giants was the tough-luck loser—and against the New York Mets, too, who

The Mets were hitless with one out in the seventh inning when Frank Thomas hit a ball to the centerfield wall. Willie Mays made a spectacular attempt to catch it but dropped the ball as he hit the wall and Thomas got a triple, which scored Rod Kanehl, who had walked. Thomas then scored the 2-2 run before Jim Hickman gave the Mets a 4-2 win with a two-run homer.

Diego Segui, who blanked them, 11-0, the last time he faced them, had New York Yankees no-hit until Hector Lopez hit his fifth home run in the sixth inning. The Yankees picked up five more hits but no more runs as Kansas City Athletics went on for the 4-1 win.

BIG DIFFERENCE

Rocky Colavito provided the big difference for the Athletics with a three-run homer in the first inning.

Defeat dropped the Yankees two and a half games behind Chicago White Sox, who defeated Detroit Tigers, 4-1, on a combination of John Buzhardt's six-hit pitching and Pete Wroble's grand-slam home run.

Two runs Minnesota Twins pulled into a third-place tie with the Yankees by edging Boston Red Sox, 3-2, with Harmon Killebrew providing two runs for Jim Roland with his 14th home run and a run-scoring single.

Luis Aparicio drove in two runs as Baltimore Orioles scored their 14th consecutive victory of the season, defeating Los Angeles 5-2.

ROBERTS WIN

Robin Roberts, given an eighth inning assist by reliever Stu Miller, picked up his third victory of the season and the 261st of his major league career.

Pittsburgh Pirates were dropped from third to fifth place in the National League as Los Angeles Dodgers got some good pitching from Joe Moeller and timely hitting from Willie Davis for a 4-1 win.

TIE FOR THIRD

Moving ahead, and into a third-place tie, were the Milwaukee Braves and St. Louis Cardinals.

The Braves scored six runs in the second inning and then hung on to beat Chicago Cubs, 6-5, despite the hitting of Billy Williams, who blasted his 12th homer, a double and two singles in four trips to home, his batting average to .411. The Cardinals edged Cincinnati Reds, 4-3, on Ray Sadecki's pitching and battery mate Tim McCarver's hitting.

Our governments keep talking about physical fitness and we have a Canadian fitness council which is distributing large sums of money to encourage physical activity in the form of games and then they do things like this to organizations which are getting by on their own," said an angry Doug Fletcher when he heard of the ruling. "It makes you wonder. We can't play in the evenings because there is no late service to get us home that day and now we have had our expenses almost doubled. What can we do about it?"

That's a tough question, and all I can suggest is that we all keep trying to do something about it. Ferry authorities are not about to change cozy arrangements unless they are convinced that there are enough unhappy tax-paying voters to give them pause, and indications are that they will take considerable convincing.

GIVE US THE PEDS: If there are any arguments against using retired baseball players as baseball announcers, and there are, Dizzy Dean has to be just about all of them rolled up in one.

A colorful extrovert, Dean was an outstanding pitcher in his playing days although one has to doubt that his career lasted long enough for Hall of Fame ranking as it enabled him to win no more than 150 games. As an announcer, he falls considerably short of Hall of Fame.

Last Sunday brought an irritating example. Minnesota Twins and he came up with the kind of a masterpiece every real baseball fan wants to see. It was an absolute lesson in the art of pitching to watch as the veteran kept Minnesota's sluggers off balance to win a tense, 2-0 game.

It was the kind of a game any good announcer would have relished, and made even better. But Dizzy spent most of his time plugging friend Roy Acuff and his Smokey Mountain Boys, acknowledging telegrams from friends and/or publicity seekers or lauding the greatness of coaches with lifetime batting averages under .250. He even gave us another rendition of The Wabash Cannonball. It was most entertaining—as long as you weren't a baseball fan.

THE FULL CIRCLE: Scotland, it is generally conceded, exported the game of curling to Canada and while one doesn't like to be suspicious about these things, one wonders if the thrifty Scots didn't have in mind that flourishing business which was built up at Alisa Craig.

In modern times at least the game lacked universal appeal in Scotland, and it might have become lost in antiquity had it not been for the enthusiasm with which it was adopted by Canadians.

Curling became a new sport in Canada although the basic rules remained the same and Scotland's Royal Caledonian Curling Association was recognized as the "mother" club. Canadians put the game indoors on artificial ice, speeded it up to suit modern demands, introduced a new type of broom and the knock-out style of play always frowned on in Scotland, where a curling match was an all-day affair and it was considered somewhat unsportsmanlike to bang an opponent's rock out of the rings.

It was a formula which brought curling status as a major sport in Canada and made it a growing international game, and brought Scotland a big new business in the export of curling rocks. Scotland had at Alisa Craig the only known granite which would acceptably stand up to the pounding a curling rock gets, and the Scots realized a rare dividend on a game begun when bored Scottish sheepherders took to sliding rocks on the frozen lochs.

Now, one hears, curling is about to become completely Canadianized in Canada. A black granite said to be superior even to the best granite quarried at Alisa Craig has reportedly been discovered near North Bay, Ontario, and manufacture of Canadian curling rocks is to start in the near future.

Ironically enough, the possible loss of the huge Canadian market may cause no layoffs at Alisa Craig. Appearance of the Canadian champions in Scotland for Scotch Cup playdowns left the Scots so enamored with the Canadian style of play that there is a rebirth of interest in curling in the land of its origin and a growing market at home. Who knows, we may yet see the day that Scots will be playing their reclaimed game with Canadian rocks.

IT BEATS ME

RUBBING IT IN: B.C. Ferries, it is becoming more and more evident, is being operated solely for profit at the expense of service.

Lack of late sailings, as has so often been pointed out, makes it virtually impossible for most Vancouver Islanders to attend attending Mainland events they would like to see. We are concerned here mainly with the travel of teams and sports fans but they are by no means all those being denied an expected service, and they are by no means so few that they can be ignored.

But they really haven't been ignored. The new ruling doing away with the special party rates on weekends is a body blow to a number of sports groups barely surviving financial difficulties as it was.

It could well be that there was an excellent reason for the move because of the heavy weekend traffic but the fact remains it has taken away a bit more of the little service the system has given sports and sports fans.

The new rule is a particularly tough blow to juvenile teams who play their games on weekends. Under the party rate, they could take 25 players and officials to the Mainland and return for $35 in ferry costs. Without it, the cost is $100, a differential which may well make it impossible for some groups to carry on with their schedule of games.

"Our governments keep talking about physical fitness and we have a Canadian fitness council which is distributing large sums of money to encourage physical activity in the form of games and then they do things like this to organizations which are getting by on their own," said an angry Doug Fletcher when he heard of the ruling. Indianapolis Race Today

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A $300,000 purse and a battle for racing survival by the old-fashioned front engine and roadsters await 33 drivers in the 48th Indianapolis 500-mile auto race today.

An expected 250,000—a massing of racing buffs, morbidly curious and Memorial Day picnickers—may see the famed race's first foreign winner in 40 years, first rear-engine triumph in history, and a speedway record for the sixth straight year.

Generally favored is Scotland's Jimmy Clark, world road racing champion and the record-breaking qualifier in one of seven rear-engine Ford entries. Clark won the pole position with a four-lap 158.828 miles per hour over the 2½-mile asphalt oval.

In a surprising vote Friday, writers and broadcasters established Bobby Marshman of Pottstown, Pa., as the favorite. Fourteen voted for Marshman and 18 votes went to Clark.

The Ford-powered contenders along with five other rear-engine mounts, will challenge 18 front-engine Offenhausers—the conventional four-cylinder roadster, which is seeking an 18th successive Speedway victory—breaking qualifier in one.

Fifteen Yachtsmen on Lonely Voyage

Trans-Atlantic Race Saga of Survival

By JOSEPH MACBREEN
PLYMOUTH, England (CP)—The 15 yachtsmen who headed for the high seas in the second single-handed transatlantic race must be among the truest adventurers in the world.

Certainly some sort of special tag should go to five of the men who are at the lonely and arduous ordeal again after being the original competitors in the first race in 1960.

May 23, for the ocean coast of 2,800 miles from Plymouth to Newport, R.I. It is called a race but could more properly be termed a matter of survival.

The Royal Western Yacht Club of England, the organizer, stipulates the yachtsmen must prove they are well prepared for the journey and they "have no right to expect or demand rescue operations to be launched on their behalf."

At least some of the boats carried cars since the rules allow the yachts to be propelled by the force of the wind, the manpower of the crew, or both. "If the wind fails, the lone sailors may perch on the sterns and scull their craft along."

What impells men to become sea-borne hermits under such grueling conditions?

Dr. David Lewis, 46-year-old London physician who placed third in 1960, said with a smile the only thing the yachtsmen have in common is that they all have slipped discs from the back-breaking work.

They include two doctors and a dentist, a Royal Marine officer, a farmer, a brewer, two French naval officers and a Danish construction worker and wanderer. Their ages range from 28 to 63.

The 61-year-old is Francis Chichester, who sailed his 40-foot Gipsy Moth III to victory in 40 days in 1960. He did the trip alone again in Gipsy in 1962, cutting his time to 33½ days.

A Briton who emigrated to New Zealand as a youth, he won fame as a pioneer long-distance flyer before he turned to single-handed navigation. He likes solitude so much he tended to vanish from human company even before the race began.

Mike Ellison, 28-year-old master mariner making the solo passage for the first time aboard the 36-foot Iala, which carries a specially designed Chinese schooner rig, said before departure:

"I know there will be times when I shall be very frightened."

Bill Howell, 33, Australian dental surgeon, sailing the eight-ton Standfast, declared: "I love the sense of isolation. On your own you really see things in perspective."

For Lewis, a New Zealander, the Atlantic crossing is merely a first step. His wife and two small daughters plan on joining him in the United States and they will sail on to New Zealand.

Liverpool had defeated Monterrey, Mexico, 3-0 earlier in the tournament. Two points for the victory and one point for the tie gave Liverpool a 3-2 margin over Monterrey in the competition.

Action on School Costs

PORT ALBERNI—In the wake of the 1964 meeting of the Island Municipalities Association here Thursday, delegates are saying the most important decision may not have been the most published one.

All the stories about the convention seemed mostly concerned with disaster aid, but a matter more vital to every countie took up at least an equal amount of time.

Finders Not Keepers

Watch for deer on roadways—but hands off.

The provincial fish and game branch each year at this time is plagued by well-meaning animal lovers who pick the animals up at the roadside thinking they are helpless.

Game branch officers say the newborn fawns are better able to look after themselves than they appear, and usually their mothers are nearby in the brush.

Officers warn they will prosecute anyone molesting the newborn animals, and the offence carries a maximum $500 fine.

The matter is school costs, which take up about half of every municipality's budget, and the decision was to send a committee of five to see Education Minister Peterson.

Outgoing president Reeve Donaldson named the committee as his last official act.

He chose incoming president Reeve Gordon Lee of Central Saanich, Mayor William Moore of Courtenay, Ald. Jack Perry of Port Alberni, Coun. Joseph Casey of Saanich and Coun. R. Robertson of Parksville.

The committee will discuss the school-cost problem in general—and is liable to make some mention of specific points raised by Ald. Perry, who introduced the resolution asking for its appointment.

He said school boards do an excellent job in providing everything pupils need regardless of cost, but school budgets are increasing at a rate far in excess of that occasioned by higher enrolment.

In addition, municipalities only have a limited time to consider the budgets and must argue economic necessity against theoretical advantages.

Ald. Perry mentioned several cost items which his council had queried, but action was forestalled due to lack of time and lack of knowledge of details.

They included library service for elementary schools, employment of a full-time professional engineer, employment of both a supervisor and a director for elementary education, and the fact the school board paid B.C. Trustees Association membership fees which are five times council membership fees in the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Discussion of Ald. Perry's resolution caused Mayor Moore to say the UBCM "hasn't done a damn thing" about the school-cost policy it laid down in 1958.

Mayor Alex Fraser of Quesnel, the UBCM president, said the executive has not abandoned this policy but has decided not to press it this year because of the strong mandate given the government in last year's election.

He said UBCM officers will meet trustees association officials in September to discuss rising school costs.

Mr. Fraser objected to the resolution, saying the matter should be handled either by the UBCM or individual councils.

The association also supported Nanaimo's fight against a new B.C. law which would give the provincial highways department control over certain municipal rezoning.

Esquimalt Graduates 140

'Turnstile Into Life'

By TED GASKELL

Parents and friends of Esquimalt Senior Secondary School were introduced to members of the graduating class in colorful ceremonies last night.

The 140 students, with teachers in the gowns of their universities, made an impressive sight as they marched in procession to the stage, there to be seated and introduced by name to the audience that filled the school auditorium.

GOOD LUCK

Mrs. Norman Byron, of the Esquimalt Chapter, IODE, wished the graduates good luck and Russ Norington, in his valedictory address, spoke of the gratitude owed the school.

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele, speaking for the municipality and the Esquimalt Lions Club, told the students they were "passing through a turnstile into life" which he hoped would be "full and great" for them.

Reeve Wurtele presented a book Peace River Chronicles to the school.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Lorne Monkman, student council president, spoke of the school's successful year in academics, athletics and in citizenship, and he presented to principal C. A. Kelly, from the students, a historical novel.

Peter Bunn, representing the Greater Victoria school board, told students they "had a hard job in a changing world," much harder than his first few post-graduation years which were spent in the army in which his life was organized for him.

SUPERINTENDENT

Guest speaker was former vice-principal W. D. Reid, now district superintendent of the Ladner school district.

Mr. Reid urged the students to be grateful to the school and said that the measure of a school is not judged by one person or one activity but by the efforts of many people over many years.

GAVE INVOCATION

The Rev. J. A. Roberts gave the invocation after Mr. Kelly opened the ceremonies. Parents were entertained by the school band playing the Civil War Suite and God of Our Fathers. Arlene McIlroy and Doreen Dittman sang a duet Graduation Day, Mary-Ann Bryant sang Climb Every Mountain and Lynda Norma, Ave Maria.

Victoria Theatre Guild Chosen for Honor Night

B.C. to Get New Ferry On Friday

Harold Husband, president of VBCF, will officially hand over the B.C. Ferry Authority's new vessel, "Queen of Nanaimo" to Premier Bennett during the craft's initial cruise, Friday.

The cruise will start from the Inner Harbor at 11 a.m. and during the voyage the ship's engines will be stopped and the acceptance ceremony carried out.

Dogwood on Anchor New Museum Insignia

The Maritime Museum of B.C. has adopted a new insignia of a stylized dogwood on a fouled gold anchor, both on a dark blue background topped by a naval crown.

The insignia was designed by Cmdr. Alan Beddoe of Ottawa, the federal government's heraldry expert.

Elected to two-year terms as museum directors are Hugh Curtis, Capt. G. R. Newell, Dr. J. C. M. Ogelsby, M. L. Greene, Capt. J. Osborn, Hugh Hender-

NANAIMO—Victoria, Prince Rupert and Vernon groups will provide the honor performance as the B.C. one-act drama festival ends with award presentations in the high school auditorium tonight.

Adjutant Gordon Peacock of Calgary last night chose as the honor plays Shakespeare's Twelfth Night by the Vernon Little Theatre, the drama The Hole by Victoria Theatre Guild and the existentialist play Impromptu by the Prince Rupert Civic Centre Little Theatre.

Of Impromptu, he said individual performances were at "quite a high level," and added "my understanding is much clearer now that I have seen" the Prince Rupert interpretation.

Of the other two Friday plays, he said The Browning Version by the Nelson Little Theatre lacked a sense of immediacy, while The Bespoke Overcoat by the Esque Players from the Peace River area had poor characterizations.

On opening night Wednesday, Mr. Peacock's key remark about The Hole was that he would not try to explain the drama—"the only thing to do with this kind of theatre is to enjoy it."

SOMETHING EXCITING

Thursday, he said the cast of Twelfth Night "stretched for something much larger than some of the casts have... there was something exciting here."

The Vernon group, which won six of seven awards in its zone festival, almost didn't get to Nanaimo because of travel costs. Emerald Players of Vancouver, who won four awards last year, were not chosen this time.

85 Starters Today

Swiftsure Entries Record

By MIKE GADSBY

The last of the ceremonies is over, and today it will be up to 85 yachts and their crews—a recent record entry list—to write the final chapter in the story of the 1964 Swiftsure racing classic.

A crowd estimated at from 8,000 to 10,000 last night gathered at the Inner Harbor to give the yachts their final send-off and enjoy the ceremonies laid on for the event.

With the sun setting in a clear blue sky as a background, the mass of Victorians and visitors lined the Causeway three-deep to take a look at the impressive display of yachts and hear a description of each from Humphrey Golby, a race organizer, who made his annual roll call from the deck of HMCS Juno.

A square dance group of 150 pre-teen-age children performed on the lawn of the Empress Hotel in gay white, blue and red uniforms.

Five members of the Lions Club convention, currently being held here, staged an impromptu show with a five-piece band in the hotel lobby and the staid old building rang with applause.

The band—a jazz, washboard, accordion, banjo and guitar.

SUNSET RITES
One of the evening's major events was the sunset ceremony, performed by the 5th B.C. Independent Medium Battery Royal Regiment of Canadian Artillery.

The last rays of the sun had just disappeared behind the Bookie Hills as the band and color party marched down Government Street, but the crowd waited patiently for the impressive ceremony as the flag followed the sun by about 10 minutes.

Many of the thousands started home after the playing of Abide With Me, but hundreds stayed for a special showing of colored slides of previous Swiftsures, by James A. McVie on the lawn of the Empress.

WINNER UNDECIDED
Meanwhile, last year's Swiftsure winner has still to be decided.

As it stands now, Thetis, owned by Bob Regan, of Seattle, is the winner, but a protest is still to be considered.

If it is allowed, the winner would be Winsome III, owned by Lol Killam, of Vancouver.

Both yachts are entered in this year's race in the BB class.

SLOW START SEEN
Starting gun will sound at 9:30 a.m. today off Brochies Ledge, but it will probably be a slow start, as southwest winds of only 10 knots are predicted for the morning.

Weatherman William Mackie said the sky will be mostly cloudy in the morning, but should clear partially in the afternoon. He said the yachtsmen may run into some drizzle on the outer coast.

WINDS TO FRESHEN
He said the winds will probably freshen to about 15 knots as the day goes on, and may occasionally reach 20 in the afternoon.

Winds will lighten overnight Saturday and freshen up again Sunday afternoon. Temperatures will range between the high 40s and high 50s.

Best vantage point for the start of the race will be Beacon Hill Park or any waterfront west of it. Some racing fans are expected to drive out the West Coast Road as far as Port Renfrew to follow the race.

WATCHABLE
Among the most watchable events are the scurry in which riders whip over three small jumps, around a pole and return over the jumps again racing against the clock, and the barrel race where three barrels are laid out like a clover leaf and the rider races around them. Once again the best time wins.

Among the competitors will be riders from Parkville, Alberni, Nanaimo, Chemainus and southern Vancouver Island points.

Neighbor Hostess To Battle

A woman phoned city police yesterday to say she just witnessed a running battle between two men who ran straight through her home.

Mrs. Peggy Brydges, 1204 Pembroke, told police a man whom she recognized as a neighbor was fighting with another man outside her house.

The man she recognized ran into her house shouting, "get this man away from me."

The two men ran upstairs, where there was another short battle, then they ran down again and out the back door.

More Money

YM-YWCA Returning To Public

Unanticipated costs are sending the YM-YWCA back to the public to raise an additional $237,000 for the new YM-YWCA building under construction on Courtney Street.

In a statement issued yesterday, YM-YWCA officials said the building fund can expect, from its past building campaign and other sources, a maximum revenue of $1,110,000.

CERTAIN EXPENDITURE
"Against this we are faced with a certain expenditure of $1,347,000."

Original objective was $1,138,000.

Architect S. J. Caniffie said the cost increase is due to many factors:

● Original estimates may have been a little low.

● Building costs have increased in the 2½ years since the estimates were prepared.

● A new federal sales tax on materials added $40,000.

● Financing costs were not considered in the original estimates.

Nelson Unicorn, who is in charge of the "clean-up canvass," said it will be concentrated mainly in June and the main campaign will begin around June 6.

Canvassers will seek five-year pledges and some of the campaign will attempt to reach people and firms missed in the main drive.

GIFTS, PLEDGES
Money now anticipated is made up of $945,000 received so far in gifts and pledges, a $25,000 B.C. government grant contingent on the new building being debt-free, and $140,000 anticipated from the sale of the existing YMCA and YWCA buildings.

But it appears the YM-YWCA is not even entirely sure of the $140,000 from the sale.

LEGALLY BINDING
It is understood doubts have arisen as to whether a contract for purchase, announced around the new year, is legally binding.

It was announced then that Lochan Properties Ltd. of Edmonton was buying the buildings for $140,000. It is understood proceedings are currently going on to test whether the purchase is legally binding.

GOOD PRICE
A YM-YWCA official said he understands the buildings should be able to command a good price even if the Lochan deal falls through.

Radio Stolen

Dale Smith, 619 Lampton, told police a $140 transistor radio was stolen from a locker in Victoria High School.

Firefighters Will Be There

A delegation of Saanich firefighters and others protesting the appointment of a Victoria firefighter as Saanich fire chief will attend Monday night's meeting of Saanich municipal council.

A statement issued last night by Saanich Firefighters Union president William Holmes and secretary David McGregor said, "Saanich council has not as yet consented to see the union on Monday."

"However, Saanich firefighters will attend the council meeting with a legal advisor, plus many influential citizens," Saanich Reeve Stanley Murphy said last night that the firefighters' protest will not be on the agenda of Monday night's meeting, but "they can be heard."

The firefighters' union claimed that more than 3,000 Saanich residents have signed a petition opposing the appointment of Victoria firefighter Joseph Sutherland.

"Public support is with us," The union said it will submit a brief Monday night and "we hope to persuade council to rescind their previous motion."

TAKE OVER
Reeve Murphy said Mr. Sutherland has been asked to begin working with the Saanich department around June 15 and will take over as chief at the end of the month.

Saanich Coun. Joseph Casey, chairman of council's finance committee which deals with fire matters, last night pointed out that the firefighters union would not allow its members to write one exam for promotion proposed by council, but that eight members of the department wrote a later exam for promotion.

FOUR OR FIVE
He said it is inconsistent that there has been considerable criticism of the fire chief's appointment but none of recent promotions in the police department, despite the fact that there were "four or five" policemen with more seniority than those who were promoted.

"It's good for Peter it's good for Paul," he said he was not criticizing the police commission's choices for promotion.

Coun. Casey will be attending a convention in Regina next week, as he has planned for several months to do.

Working Conditions

Building Exchange, Carpenters Clash

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

The carpenters' union and the Victoria Building Industries Exchange have met head-on about whether Victoria carpenters' wages and working conditions should be covered by a province-wide labor agreement.

A conciliation board in the contract dispute between the exchange and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners is to begin meetings Tuesday.

VOTE FOR STRIKE
Meanwhile, Vancouver carpenters, with whom Victoria carpenters are seeking parity, have voted overwhelmingly to authorize strike action in their dispute with employers represented by the Vancouver Building Exchange and the Heavy Construction Association of B.C.

The Victoria carpenters are seeking wage increases totalling 60 cents an hour. This includes the amount Vancouver carpenters are seeking plus 14 cents required to close the gap between wages in the two centres.

FRINGE BENEFITS
In addition, the Victoria exchange said in a statement last night, the carpenters are seeking fringe benefits which would cost the contractors 54 cents an hour.

A statement issued yesterday by the Victoria exchange denied union charges that the exchange refused to negotiate.

"MOST WILLING"
"Victoria Building Industries Exchange advised the carpenters' union that we were most willing to meet with them for negotiations provided two things were attended to by the union first:

● "The union was told that we wished to negotiate on the basis of an agreement drawn up by Victoria Carpenters Local 1588 as in the past, and not on a British Columbia province-wide agreement."

● "We requested that the carpenters... present us with an agreement containing a sensible request for wage increase and sensible conditions."

"Our wishes were ignored."

completely and under these circumstances there was absolutely no useful purpose in the meetings requested by the union."

INVEST ON PARITY
Arthur Leam, executive secretary-treasurer of the union's B.C. Provincial Council of Carpenters, said last night that "we're going to insist on" Victoria-Vancouver parity.

He said a Victoria carpenter who goes to the other side of the Malahat to work now gets 14 cents an hour more. "It just doesn't add up."

Plaque Will Honor McPherson

Simple Tribute to Principal Square Donor

By IAN STREET

A simple stone plaque near the entrance of the new civic theatre will commemorate the contribution by the late T. S. McPherson to Centennial Square.

The entire $400,000 cost of the theatre, to be known officially as the McPherson Playhouse, will come out of his bequest to the city.

The committee in charge of planning the $2,000,000 civic square yesterday rejected a proposal that in addition to the plaque a bust and painting of

Mr. McPherson be displayed in the theatre lounge.

"Mr. McPherson was a modest, retiring sort of man," said Mayor R. B. Wilson.

"He would not want a great memorial with statues or paintings in it. The plaque, simply inscribed, will be a permanent remembrance."

The mayor said works of art often fall out of fashion and disappear.

There is one additional hazard, he told the committee. "We would be taking an awful chance commissioning a piece of sculpture. One never knows how it will turn out."

Roderick Clack, co-ordinating architect on the project, said a 20-by-30-inch inscribed stone should be placed just outside the main entrance to the theatre.

In this position, he said, it will be seen readily by theatre patrons and passers-by.

Cost of the plaque will be about $300. It will be installed during early stages of construction on the theatre which is already under way.

The committee also approved the preparation of final working drawings for the carpark facility and shopping arcade in Centennial Square at a fee of $17,500.

The provision of space in the carpark for police vehicles has been approved by the police commission.

City manager Dennis Young told the committee that provided the capital budget bylaw is approved June 18 work will be able to start on this last major section of the square complex by early September.

This will permit the city to obtain full winter works benefits on the facility and complete the square, except for a few landscaping details, by the end of 1965, well ahead of schedule.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Sometimes I think you print things just to get a rise out of people. Right now I am so burned up I can hardly see this paper. You told a grandmother who said she enjoyed every minute of raising her four children that she had a very poor memory.

Are you a mind-reader? Maybe she DID enjoy every minute of it. Where do you get off telling her she didn't?

We have four children and the fifth is expected any day. I can't wait till that baby gets here. Our youngest is a two-year-old little lady and it will be wonderful to have an infant in the house again.

Each stage of raising children is fun and every child is different. I have enjoyed every minute of being a parent and now you can call me a liar, too. —DAVENPORT DAD

Dear Dad! Well, I admit you had me fooled for a minute. Your testimonial for motherhood is the first I've ever received from a father.

How marvelous that you have enjoyed every minute of being a parent. And now, may I hear from your wife?

Dear Ann Landers: Larry and I are going to be married in September. I want him to wear a wedding ring because my Dad always wore one and I love the way a wedding ring looks on a man's hand.

Larry does not want to wear a wedding ring. He says it means nothing. Furthermore, he insists that down at the office where he works the men who wear wedding rings, run around the most and act the least married.

Larry has observed, too, that the women around the office think wedding rings on men are sexy and challenging. They actually pick these men as targets.

I don't want to make a big flap over this but we both would like your views. Why do YOU think some men wear wedding rings? —M CARAT QUESTION

Dear M Carat: I believe the men who wear wedding rings do so because their wives want them to.

Unless this means a great deal to you, give up, honey. It's apparent your guy will continue to fight it.

Dear Ann Landers: From time to time you have had letters in your column from kids who are disgusted because they work hard at their studies and don't do as well as the kids who cheat. In our school the kids don't have to cheat to get good grades. All they have to do is butter up

CANADIAN WOMEN WORRIED BY SERIOUS COMPLEXION PROBLEMS

More than two-thirds of Canadian women have been found to suffer from skin dryness—a condition caused by harsh weather, over-heated rooms, low-fat diets, etc. Robbed of natural oils and moisture, the skin toughens; little lines and crow's feet appear. If this is your problem, you need POND'S SKIN CREAM. This famous cream, now with Allantoin, starts repair work in just 10 minutes! Allantoin floats off lifeless surface skin cells, speeds penetration of POND's rich moisturized lanolin to parched tissues far below. Almost overnight, your complexion takes on new tone, looks smoother, softer, younger. Get POND'S SKIN CREAM... in jar or tube, wherever cosmetics are sold.

Royal Roads

Impressive Ceremony

Yesterday couldn't have been a more perfect summer-like day for the impressive graduation ceremonies at Canadian Services College, Royal Roads.

Close to 2,000 guests, including proud parents, brothers, sisters, girl friends and special guests, watched the 77 graduating officer cadets go through their paces on the parade grounds.

The blue of the Esquimalt Lagoon, the rich green of the spacious lawns and park-like surroundings, the rainbow of colors in the attractive fashions worn by the women guests and the smart uniforms of the senior officers coupled with the red and black dress uniforms of the officer cadets, all added to the colorful scene.

The bands of HMCS Naden and the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, provided the stirring music for the marching manoeuvres executed by the cadet wing.

Major-General Robert P. Rothschild, Quartermaster-General of the Canadian Army, was inspecting officer. He also presented the awards to the graduates.

Tea was served following the graduation ceremony on the grounds at the Castle.

Graduation Ball, held last evening on the college quarterdeck in the Grant Block, marked the end of an activity-packed week for the 34 Air Force, 26 Army and 17 Navy officer cadets. After summer training they will attend Royal Military College in Kingston, Ont., for the next two years.

Korhonen-Peaker

Sisters Attend Bride

St. Matthias Church was the setting for a pretty evening wedding recently uniting in marriage Margaret Alice Peaker and Mr. Raine Kalevi Korhonen. Baskets of pink snapdragons and blue iris flanked the altar which was decorated with red and white roses.

Rev. Angus Cameron of Lundavra performed the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Peaker, 1033 Pendergast Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Taavi Korhonen, 773 Market Street, Dr. J. Bateman was organist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride chose a floor-length gown of white sheer over taffeta with full skirt falling in soft folds to a chapel train in back. The fitted bodice featured a scooped neckline and sequins enhanced the front skirt panel. Her long veil of silk illusion net fell from a crown of seed pearls and sequins. She wore a single pearl on gold chain and matching earrings, gift of the groom, and carried red roses and white stephanotis.

The Misses Pam Crawford, and Pam Peaker, bride's sister, as senior bridesmaids, wore in pale yellow nylon over taffeta gowns with fitted bodices, belted sleeves and bouffant skirts. They wore white straw coronets trimmed with yellow nylon flowers. Junior bridesmaids were the Misses Judy and Leslie Peaker, bride's sisters. They wore blue and pink nylon over taffeta gowns, respectively, with fitted lace covered bodices. Their shoulder length veils misted from small head bands on tone.

The bride's little niece, Beverly Peaker, was flower girl. She wore a blue nylon over taffeta frock with blue lace coat and white accessories. She carried a white basket with rose petals.

Mr. Paul Kannaspuro of Mill Bay was best man. Mr. Jack Treuman and Mr. Jim Peaker, bride's brother, were ushers.

Mr. Gerry Gussley proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in the Dominion Hotel. As the guests went through the receiving line Mr. A. Anderson played background music. A tiny vase of pink roses topped the three-tiered cake which centred the bride's table.

For travelling the bride chose a three-piece pink and white knitted suit with white accessories. A pink orchid corsage completed her ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. Korhonen are now making their home at 855 Kindersley Road.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. S.

McEwen, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peaker and family, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Peaker, all of North Surrey; Mr. and Mrs. K. Spanberg, Mr. and Mrs. A. THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

During the last year I have been lecturing at Mount Royal College and enjoyed it immensely. It was a most peaceful year. It was also very enlightening to discover that in our effort to give everybody an education, standards of education have slipped sadly.

This does not mean that we do not have splendid students. There are students in Mount Royal College who would take a first class mark in any university at any time.

Dull Life

It is impossible here to reproduce the fantastic spelling and atrocious writing of many of the papers but I would like to list a few which surely did enliven my dull life.

A first year student in American History, asked to describe the significance of Whitman, replied "The Whitman came to America and slotted the Indians, breaking treaties with him. Not only did he exterminate the Indian but the Indian caught the Whitman's disease which was worst of all." After the examination the student asked me if I hadn't meant the whitman.

Asked to identify certain names in the course in Great Religions one student defined Nirvana as the founder of psychism. Another contended that he founded Buddhism. One bright youth suggested that John Wesley was the founder of the Mormon church which indirectly led to the establishment of the State of Utah.

Sex Life

One question asked the chief differences between the religions of East and the West. The student obviously took it to mean the difference between the Eastern Catholic Church and the Western Catholic Church so he replied that they were similar in that both had popes but the pope of the East was allowed a sex life while that of the West was not. The clergy of the East was also allowed a sex life and that of the West was not.

Another student felt that while religion had an effect nevertheless "A man's children is influenced by his belief."

Reformation

One student thought George Fox was the founder of the Methodist faith while another had the idea that John Wesley founded the Reformation. There seemed to be a great deal of admiration for Theodore Roosevelt. As one student remarked: "He had the theory of the big stick which he used to smarten people up." Another student knew that John Wesley was the founder of the Methodist Movement because "him and his brother came to the United States and found it."

A student explained the tension between the Russian

Canadian Medicos Help Remote Areas

MONTREAL (CP) — In the jungles of Cambodia, five Canadians—four of them women—lived in tree houses while helping build a hospital.

To remote Malay villages where there are no roads, Canadian medical personnel travelled by riverboat to serve the sick.

These are some of the conditions described by Alexandrina McDougall of Montreal, president of the International Alliance of Hospital Auxiliaries, who returned from a tour of Southeast Asia earlier this year. The Canadian doctors, nurses and technicians are members of international MEDICO teams. MEDICO, a non-governmental organization for setting up hospitals and clinics in underdeveloped countries, was founded by the late Dr. Thomas Dooley, a young American who became famous for his medical work in Southeast Asia.

After Dr. Dooley's death in 1961, MEDICO was affiliated with CARE, founded 17 years ago in the United States to send medical supplies, food and clothing to the world's needy.

Mrs. McDougall says Canadians make up one-quarter of all MEDICO personnel. She says the International Alliance of Hospital Auxiliaries wants to establish an all-Canadian medical unit in Malaysia for a year and has launched a national fund-raising program to finance the plan.

Yukon Break Comes Late

DAWSON CITY, Y.T. (CP) — Ice on the Yukon River at Dawson City broke up early Thursday, the latest breakup since 1886.

Reports from the community say ice in the nearby White River and other streams hasn't broken up and ferries are not expected to be in operation for another 10 days.

Dawson residents, meanwhile, are keeping an eye on the river in case the ice causes river waters to back up.

Cheesed Off Over Cheese

OTTAWA (CP) — Douglas Alkenbrack (PC, Prince Edward-Lennox) Friday accused the government of betraying cheese producers by cutting the export subsidy on cheese to two from three cents a pound.

Guiana Probes Race Violence

GEORGETOWN (AP) — The British Guiana government will set up a commission to investigate racial violence at Wismar in which five persons were killed and 18 homes destroyed Sunday night.

Reports today from Wismar, 65 miles south of Georgetown, said life is slowly returning to normal. Nearly 2,000 Indians were taken to Georgetown. Police said they had made 22 arrests for looting, murder, arson and rape.

More Typhoid In Aberdeen

ABERDEEN, Scotland (UPI) — Medical authorities yesterday confirmed 11 new cases of typhoid in Aberdeen, bringing the total to 113 confirmed cases and 29 suspected.

The typhoid outbreak has been blamed on corned beef from abroad which was cut before canning by a contaminated slicing machine.

Snow Falls In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Up to 10 inches of snow fell in Quebec's northeast region early Thursday and temperatures tumbled into the 30s as May weather continued to be cool.

OAK BAY — Arland D. Robson, 965 Amphion, permit other person to use driver's licence, $25. Roderick Mole, Work Point Barracks, no driver's licence, $20.

'Plague of Spirit' Hits Oak Bay Senior Band Beatle-Bound Girls

BALTIMORE—Two young girls with a mania for the Beatles and "Liverpool or Bust" written on their luggage have eluded police here for four days, to the consternation of their parents.

A 17-state alarm was out for Alison Lynne Moore, 12, and Carolee Pashas, 16, believed en route to New York City as a point of debarkation for England and the four famous singers.

Herbert S. Moore, Alison's father, says the two "are infected with bubonic plague of the spirit" in their affection for the singers. "It's an incredible thing to see," Moore lamented.

Picture Expected Today On Nehru's Successor

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—among the ashes as they passed.

Intensive lobbying went on here Friday by politicians of the ruling Congress party to rally support for prospective successors to Jawaharlal Nehru as prime minister of India.

A clear picture was expected to emerge today on the extent of support for the three main candidates—Acting Prime Minister Gulzarilal Nanda, Minister without Portfolio Lal Bahadur Shastri and former Finance Minister Morarji Deesai.

Nehru, who ruled India for 17 years, died Wednesday of a heart attack and shock. The 74-year-old leader was cremated Thursday on the banks of the sacred river Jumna.

Meanwhile, mourners were still filing past the funeral pyre where "Bharatiji"—as he was known to 400,000,000 Indians—was cremated. They dropped handfuls of red roses among the ashes as they passed.

Nehru's ashes will be collected by his family and scattered in Indian holy places.

Glanford collected 91 points, Strawberry Vale, 50 and Hampton 17.

Dismissal Injunction Turned Down

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Supreme Court Justice Friday declined to grant an injunction that would prevent two Prince George mills from dismissing their employees.

But Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan said if the mills, recently sold to a third company, continue in business labor regulations say they must rehire the men.

The injunction was sought by the Prince George local of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA).

The union said Interior Spruce Mills Ltd. had purchased Prince George Pulp Mills Ltd. and Northern Spruce Co. Ltd. The IWA was advised that its men would no longer be needed at the mills.

Spitfire Gift Accepted

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has accepted the gift of a Spitfire Mark IX aircraft for permanent display in the National Aviation Museum, State Secretary Lamontagne announced Friday.

Formal presentation from its present owner, John Paterson of Port William, Ont., will take place at Ottawa in connection with the Air Force Day celebrations.

Poll Says Labor Holding Lead

LONDON (CP)—The Gallup poll conducted for The Daily Telegraph indicates the Labor party is holding a 10-per-cent lead over the Conservatives in the campaign for the autumn election. The figure is unchanged from last week.

Holland: Windmills certainly. Also, gay cities and charming people.

London: Unofficial symbol is the famous "double-decker" bus.

Paris: World famous Eiffel Tower seen across the River Seine.

24 interesting things to know before you make your first trip to Europe.

- How to get a passport: Surprisingly easy. Pick up an application form at your nearest post office. Complete it and mail. The cost is $5.00, and it's good for five years. (Non-citizens should apply to their consulate or embassy).
- Visa: You probably won't need one. Only required in certain countries. But best to check with your travel agent.
- Vaccinations: If you're going to Europe you'll need a current vaccination certificate to get back into Canada. So make sure you get one before you leave. It is good for 3 years. (Inoculations: not required for Europe).
- Pay-Later: You can travel now by putting as little as 10% down. The rest in convenient monthly payments. Plan can also include cost of hotels, etc., when joining an Inclusive Tour.
- Fares: Do some airlines charge lower fares than others? No. By international agreement all airlines charge the same fares over the same routes.
- When is the cheapest time to travel? Plan your trip to take advantage of "21-day Excursion fares". (You must be overseas for at least 14 days, but be back within 21 days). Or, plan to travel during off-peak periods. (You can be away as long as a year). Both of these fares are economy fares and are available most of the year.
- Luggage: You can take free 44 lbs. of personal luggage on economy class, and 66 lbs. on first class. Tip: leave room for the things you'll bring back. Another tip: send any extra baggage at low freight rates. Service is fast.
- What to see? The "all inclusive" tour offers the best value for the first-time traveller. You get a good first look at Europe's attractions at a package price which includes fares, hotels, meals and sightseeing. You can go on your own, or with a group directed by an experienced tour conductor.
- "The World Is Your Vanishing Point": This is KLM's program of inclusive tours for the summer. There's one for as little as $3.50 per day per person, including hotel, breakfast and sightseeing!
- Eastern Europe: Off the "beaten track" but becoming increasingly popular are trips to Russia, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Hungary. KLM flies into all these countries.
- Is language a problem? Not if you stay on the "tourist path". Most people speak some English. You'll even find it fun learning a few foreign words yourself.
- Shopping: You'll find bargains galore! In London: china, tartans, antiques. In Italy: leather goods, silks. In France: perfumes, jewellery, wines. In Holland: Delft china-ware, crystal, diamonds, clothing.
- How much can you bring back? If you have been away 14 days you are allowed to bring back $100.00 worth of purchases free of duty per person. However, claims during the preceding 12 months will influence this allowance. Also, the import of tobacco, alcoholic beverages and certain other items is restricted. To be sure, get the leaflet "Customs hints for Canadian Residents".
- Currency: Best idea is to take travellers' cheques. Easily cashed in overseas banks and most hotels, restaurants and stores. Tip: Take with you about $10 in the currency of the country you are visiting for immediate needs. See your bank.
- Want to rent a car? A good idea if you want to be independent. The cost is reasonable. Your Canadian driver's license is recognized in most countries.
- Drinking water: It's safe in most countries, but not in all. If you want to be sure, buy bottled water or mineral water. You'll see it on sale.
- What are the hotels like? Much like Canadian hotels, except that the buildings are usually older. You can be sure the hotel recommended by your travel agent or tour conductor is clean and comfortable. Charming, too.
- Prescriptions: Have your prescriptions filled before you leave. And make sure you have an ample supply. You can buy most patent medicines over there.
- What kind of clothing is best? Take the wash-and-wear, drip-dry kind. They're usually lighter and easier to pack. Clip coupon for leaflet: "Milady's Wardrobe".
- Like to go camping? Europe's the place for it. Extremely popular. Low cost hotels and camping sites abound! You can buy or rent equipment easily and reasonably. And why not rent a scooter?
- Travelling with children: No problem keeping them entertained. There are special books and games just for that purpose on board all KLM flights. For babies there are regular baby foods, bottles, and special cots for sleeping.
- Dining on board: Cuisine served on KLM flights has an international reputation for its excellence. Special or dietary foods will be served if requested in advance.
- A book highly recommended: "Europe on $5 a Day" by Arthur Frommer. It lists a wide choice of recommended hotels, restaurants, and much other information of value. Available from KLM at $2.25—and well worth it.
- Travel Agents: A travel agent is the best possible source of information and advice for your trip. Do not hesitate to consult him.

Reds May Set Up Rival Capital

Missile Fear?

Soviets Stay In Cuba

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet troops have been leaving Cuba in small numbers since 1962, but the wholesale withdrawal of Russians expected May 1 has not taken place.

U.S. officials think Soviet officials may have had some second thoughts about turning over operation of their anti-aircraft missiles in Cuba to Premier Castro's forces.

At any rate, there has not been any formal word either from Moscow or Havana that the missile turnover has taken place.

REASON FOR FEAR

The Russians, however, would have good reason for fear. Giving the Cubans complete control of the missiles, believed capable of downing U.S. U2 reconnaissance planes, would, in effect, give Cuba control of Soviet foreign policy.

If a U2 were shot down, the U.S. might respond with force and Russia might be called on to aid Cuba.

(From AP, UPI)

Stepped-up Communist propaganda attacks against Premier Souvanna Phouma stirred speculation in Tokyo yesterday that Pathet Lao is planning to set up a rival government in the two-thirds of Laos they control.

Meanwhile Communist China pressed for a conference of the 14 nations which participated in the original Geneva agreements, but rejected Britain's call, which Souvanna supports, for ambassadorial talks in Vientiane.

The United States has joined France, Thailand, Laos and South Viet Nam in agreement with the British proposal against which Communist China led the opposition.

China reiterated its demand for a meeting of foreign ministers in Geneva or Cambodia to discuss the Laotian crisis in conjunction with the whole question of Southeast Asia, including the conflict in South Viet Nam.

EASE OFF

Diplomatic activity is expected to ease off until next week while results are awaited of U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk's visits to Bangkok and Saigon and the high-level conference of U.S. military men and diplomats scheduled for Honolulu on Monday and Tuesday.

Reports from Vientiane said Laotian government troops have seized the initiative in minor actions Friday on two sectors of the Pathet Lao battlefield.

Juvenile Misjudged?

FAIRFAX, Va. (UPI) — Three juveniles were arrested Friday for breaking the windshields of an estimated 60 parked cars over the last six days.

When police asked the youngsters what the motive was for their vandalism, one replied: "Everybody thinks I'm just a no good punk."

Cypriots Wreck British Club As Police Watch

NICOSIA (UPI) — A mob of several hundred Greek-Cypriots stormed a British-owned harbor club Friday in the first outbreak of violence of a mounting anti-British campaign throughout the island.

The mob stoned and wrecked the popular Kyrinia Harbor Club while Greek-Cypriot police were reported to have watched nearby without interfering.

The mob shouted anti-British slogans and burned a coffin marked "Death to the British" outside the club. The Greek-Cypriots showered stones on the building, breaking every window in the club.

No one was seriously injured. A chef and a waiter in the club, both Greek-Cypriots, were cut.

Turks Freed On Cyprus

NICOSIA (Reuters) — The release of nine Turkish-Cypriots alleged to have been recruited in London to return to Cyprus to fight Greek-Cypriots was announced Friday night by the Cyprus government.

Ulbricht Hints

Something Cooking In German Issue?

MOSCOW (AP) — East Germany's Communist boss Walter Ulbricht pledged Friday night to follow Kremlin policy and said he had come here to "discuss a number of political problems."

He hinted that some new Soviet initiative on the Berlin and German questions were in the wind when he told guests at a Kremlin banquet Premier Khrushchev tendered him:

"The policy worked out by the leadership of the Communist party of the Soviet Union and the Soviet government in the struggle for peaceful coexistence is of greatest importance for our people."

DIFFICULT SPOT

"We live in a country from whose territory two world wars were begun. It is in our country, in Germany, in the German Democratic Republic, that one must show how this policy is being applied in the most difficult spot in Europe."

Ulbricht received his usual ceremonial welcome on arrival but it seemed a shade warmer than is customary.

Sudbury II Near Goal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Island Tug and Barge announced Friday night that its Sudbury II had arrived off the mouth of the Columbia River with the disabled Nationalist Chinese freighter Taih Sing.

The Taih Sing, which was bound for Portland, lost its propeller 500 miles south of the Aleutians May 15.

Malaysian 'Summit' In Tokyo

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Salvador Lopez, special Philippines envoy in the Malaysian crisis, told reporters Friday night a summit meeting on the situation would be held in Tokyo in June.

Lopez also said the Philippines, Indonesia and Malaysia would formally and separately ask Thailand to verify the withdrawal of Indonesian guerrillas from Malaysia.

The Filipino envoy conferred for 45 minutes with President Sukarno.

Nickel 'Twins' Score Again

Another Copper Strike!

FLIN FLON (CP) — Two veteran prospectors are reported to have made a major copper ore discovery in the Cranberry Portage area 30 miles southeast of this Manitoba community.

Philip Bachnick and Harry Howell, both of The Pas, made the discovery on a trap line they have operated in the area for a number of years.

The two registered 36 claims May 13 and were reported to have sold options on the claims to Kenare Petroleum Corp. Ltd. of Calgary which has a mine exploration office here.

Michael Ogden, a consulting geologist for Kenare, was reported to be on the property formulating a development program.

Reports said that preliminary assays on the ore showed 18 per cent copper and .04 ounces of gold.

Portage has created excitement here, with at least four companies at the scene and several hundred claims staked within the last few days.

There's more than frustration behind backbench Liberal agitation for a vote.

The Liberals now hold 137 House seats against 98 Conservatives, 17 New Democrats, 13 Creditists and nine Social Credit. There are three vacancies due to deaths of two Liberals and one Conservative.

There's more than frustration behind backbench Liberal agitation for a vote.

PROFITOUS TIME

Some argue that now is a propitious time for a government to hold an election, with the country's economy humming in high gear.

Some Liberals — and some MPs from other parties share their view — would like an election before the government's projected redistribution becomes effective and carves up their constituencies.

OPPOSITE WAY

Redistribution is an argument the opposite way among other Liberals who contend their party would gain through added urban representation if redistribution could be brought into effect before an election.

An election in 1964 would be the third in three years. On June 15, 1962, the Conservatives won re-election with only 136 of 265 seats and their subsequent defeat on a confidence issue led to the 1963 general election on April 8.

Union Jack Becoming Key Issue

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Union Jack is shaping up as one of the most contentious issues surrounding the government's resolution for a distinctive national flag.

The questions which are being heaped on the old banner, recognized in Prime Minister Pearson's resolution as a symbol of Canada's Commonwealth membership and loyalty to the crown, are divided into three groups.

● What legal right has Canada to legislate on the flag of another country?

● Why should there have to be official recognition of a symbol which has already been adopted through custom?

● Why was the Union Jack incorporated into a national flag resolution instead of being dealt with separately?

The experts say that the

Grits Wave Flag

Filibuster Means Election

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's maple leaf flag proposal has stirred a wave of election speculation in Ottawa.

One backbench Liberal MP says his party will go to the people if the Conservative opposition wages a filibuster to delay action in the government's flag resolution.

For their part, the Conservatives are said to be ready and eager to battle the issue through to an election.

Pearson:

CALL ELECTION

Behind this element lies Prime Minister Pearson's declaration that this minority government considers its flag resolution a matter of confidence. If defeated on it, he would resign and call a general election.

Apart from the flag dispute, strong sentiment for a federal election this year has been building up among backbench Liberal MPs.

NO INDICATION

However, there is no indication backbenchers are influencing the stated position of Mr. Pearson that his government should operate as if it commanded a majority in the 265-member House and that only parliamentary defeat on a confidence issue should bring on an election.

"If we can't get our program through Parliament we might as well go to the country, find out where we stand, and see whether the people will elect a majority government," says one backbench Liberal.

GENERAL REACTION

He indicated a belief he was voicing a fairly general reaction among Liberal MPs to the slow parliamentary pace of the government's legislative program.

Place Pride In Nation

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson appealed Friday to Canadians to place their first pride and loyalty in Canada and called for understanding, tolerance and wisdom in dealing with national and international problems.

He said the need to have the British parliament amend the Canadian constitution and the "absence of certain normal symbols of national sovereignty have helped create in the minds of strangers outside Canada and in the minds of many citizens, especially new ones, in Canada, the mistaken idea that we are not really an independent country like others."

He said it "is important to bring the external appearance of things in accord with the reality of Canada's proud position in the world."

'Papa, Why Does Auschwitz Smell?'

'Little Me' Grim Comic Hit

FRANKFURT (UPI) — Former Gestapo comrades and victims laughed derisively Friday when defendant Oswald Kaduk denied the Auschwitz war crimes trial that "little me" ever did anything wrong at the notorious Nazi death camp.

Survivors have labeled Kaduk the "most brutal man" in Auschwitz.

He is alleged to have burned children alive and enjoyed breaking the necks of inmates with a pickaxe.

His outburst came during testimony by Wladyslaw Feljkiel, a Polish doctor and educator, in the trial of Kaduk and 21 other former guards charged with taking part in the murders of up to 4,000,000 persons in the camp during the Second World War.

"Why, there was no harassment of prisoners," Kaduk shouted, "and even if there was, the prisoners brought it on themselves."

Co-defendant Wilhelm Boger, alleged "master torturer" of Auschwitz, erupted into laughter. He laughed so hard tears ran down his sunken cheeks.

"Little me? I never hit anybody," Kaduk continued. "... well, I never used a club to beat prisoners. I used my left or right hand. I had a very strong hand."

Former inmates sitting in the spectators section roared with laughter. Boger guffawed and the other co-defendants grinned.

Whales Nearly Gone

NANAIMO—Hunters and Japan are overharvesting whales in the Antarctic and Pacific oceans, says biologist Dr. Gordon Pike, a member of the International Whaling Commission.

He said Russia, Japan, Canada and the U.S. caught 13,000 whales worth $28,000,000 in the North Pacific last year.

In the Antarctic, he predicted, whales will be nearly extinct within a year. Russia already is withdrawing its factory ships because of a whale shortage.

Hunt Starting

Sea Lion Pelts New Business?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The annual hunt for sea lions off northern Vancouver Island and the Queen Charlotte Islands starts this weekend and may herald the start of a commercial enterprise.

Normally the sea lions which gather on the rocky shores are killed to keep them from preying on valuable commercial fish. They have been considered of little commercial value except as mink feed.

Women Want Change

NANAIMO—The local Council of Women would prefer a closed-door committee study of abortion in Canada rather than a royal commission.

The more formal investigation is called for in a resolution going before the forthcoming convention of the National Council of Women in Hamilton, Ont. Mrs. Armand St. Jean will urge the change as Nanaimo's representative.

Other resolutions will urge birth control education, more training and education in the rehabilitation of women prisoners and better rehabilitation for short-term prisoners.

New Duncan Service Invites More Groups

DUNCAN—The newly formed Duncan and District Home Emergency Service has set its third public meeting for 8 p.m. June 22 in the Margaret Moss health centre and urged more organizations to attend.

Officials say a training program will be set up shortly and $3,000 will be a minimum target for planning.

NANAIMO—School changes resulting from the Chant report have shown the need for more counselling for students, Thomas Beames, a counsellor at Lake Cowichan Senior Secondary School, said as the main speaker at the annual PTA banquet here. He urged parents of high school students to consult counsellors and teachers about choices of graduate courses.

TOFINO—More than 50 Canadian and U.S. yachts are expected to take part in a Victoria-Tofino race beginning in Victoria July 26 and ending here two days later. Stops will be made en route at Bamfield and Ucluelet.

COMOX—A flying Red Knight will be on hand for Comox Day celebrations Aug. 22. An RCAF official says the regular open house at station Comox will not be held this year; the air force will co-operate with Comox by holding air force day events on Comox Day.

GANGES—The Gallano club, which won the inter-island trapshooting trophy for four years, presented it to the 1964 champion Salt Spring club at a smorgasbord supper held by the Salt Spring group in its clubhouse on Scott Road.

PORT ALBERT—Members of the Twin Cities' councils have indicated they will attend a meeting with school trustees June 9 to discuss matters of mutual interest.

NANAIMO—Chairman Waldie Manion has been re-elected as a trustee of the Cranberry fire protection district.

Pupil Going From Jail To School

NANAIMO—Ronald Bruce Forbes, 24, of Ucluelet, a student at the vocational training school here, was sentenced in magistrate's court yesterday to three days in jail for driving under suspension.

Magistrate Eric Finch said Forbes could serve the three days here so he could return to classes Monday.

The Road To Health

Wistful Wish Works

Pin Went Too Far!

By BEA HAMILTON
FULFORD—The lady got her wish at the garden party, and almost wished she hadn't.

The St. Mary's Guild was holding the party in the garden of the A. E. Roddis home when Mrs. Grace Gillson, a guest from Solimar Resort, was caught looking dreamily at the corsages. "I have seen so many corsages presented at these affairs," she said, "and I have always wondered if someone sometime would go too far with the pin when fastening on the flowers."

Minutes later, she got her wish. The wounded lady, who gave out only a little cry when she was struck, wasn't hurt much—except in the feelings department.

Corsages were presented to Mrs. Roddis, Guild president Miss Doris Anderson and Mrs. S. J. Leech. Guest speaker Col. Desmond Crofton of Ganges and his wife escaped with a boutonniere and a bouquet, respectively. The affair raised $77 for the guild.

Committee Named . . .

. . . To See Peterson

Municipalities Act on School Costs

PORT ALBERNI—In the wake of the 1964 meeting of the Island Municipalities Association here Thursday, delegates are saying the most important decision may not have been the most publicized one.

All the stories about the convention seemed mostly concerned with disaster aid, but a matter more vital to every centre took up at least an equal amount of time.

The matter is school costs, which take up about half of every municipality's budget, and the decision was to send a committee of five to see Education Minister Peterson.

Outgoing president Reeve Donald Morton named the committee as his last official act.

Cassey of Saanich and Coun. R. Robertson of Parksville.

The committee will discuss the school-cost problem in general—and is likely to make some mention of specific points raised by Ald. Perry, who introduced the resolution asking for its appointment.

He said school boards do an excellent job in providing everything pupils need regardless of cost, but school budgets are increasing at a rate far in excess of that occasioned by higher enrolment.

In addition, municipalities only have a limited time to consider the budgets and must argue economic necessity against theoretical advantages.

Ald. Perry mentioned several cost items which his council had queried, but action was forestalled due to lack of time and lack of knowledge of details.

They included library services for elementary schools, employment of a full-time professional engineer, employment of both a supervisor and a director for elementary education, and the fact the school board paid B.C. Teachers Association membership fees which are five times council membership fees in the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Discussion of Ald. Perry's resolution caused Mayor Moore to say the UBCM "hasn't done a damn thing" about the school-cost policy it laid down in 1958.

Mayor Alex Fraser of Quesnel, the UBCM president, said the executive has not abandoned this policy but has decided not to press it this year because of the strong mandate given the governing body in last year's election.

He said UBCM officers will meet trustees association officials in September to discuss rising school costs.

Mr. Fraser objected to the resolution, saying the matter should be handled either by the UBCM or individual councils.

The association also supported Nanaimo's fight against a new B.C. law which would give the provincial highways department control over certain municipal rezoning.

Nanaimo Festival

Victoria Shares Stage Honors

NANAIMO—Victoria, Prince Rupert and Vernon groups will provide the honor performance as the B.C. one-act drama festival ends with award presentations in the high school auditorium tonight.

Adjudicator Gordon Peacock of Calgary last night chose as the honor plays Shakespeare's Twelfth Night by the Vernon Little Theatre, the drama The Hole by Victoria Theatre Guild and the existentialist play Impromptu by the Prince Rupert Civic Centre Little Theatre.

Of Impromptu, he said individual performances were at "quite a high level," and added "my understanding is much clearer now that I have seen" the Prince Rupert interpretation.

ESPECIE PLAYERS

Of the other two Friday plays, he said The Browning Version by the Nelson Little Theatre lacked a sense of immediacy, while The Bespoke Overcoat by the Espee Players from the Peace River area had poor characterizations.

On opening night Wednesday, Mr. Peacock's key remark about Twelfth Night was that he would not try to explain the drama—"the only thing to do with this kind of theatre is to enjoy it."

SOMETHING EXCITING

Thursday, he said the cast of Twelfth Night "stretched for something much larger than some of the casts have . . . there was something exciting here."

The Vernon group, which won six of seven awards in its two festival, almost didn't get to Nanaimo because of travel costs.

Emerald Players of Vancouver, who won four awards last year, were not chosen this time.

Botanists Bound For Blinkhorne

The botanical group of the Victoria Natural History Society will make a field trip to Blinkhorne Lake today for a study of the plant life of that area.

This is the second of seven outdoor activities planned by the club during the summer.

Airmen to Photograph Big Non-Nuclear Blast

COMOX — A Neptune aircraft and crew from RCAF Station Comox have been assigned the task of photographing one of the largest man-made, unconfined, non-nuclear explosions ever triggered.

The explosion is an experiment to be carried out by the Defence Research Board July 16 at the Suffield experimental station in southern Alberta.

The Neptune, a medium-range maritime reconnaissance aircraft, will be equipped with special cameras to photograph the heart of the blast and the shock wave emanating from it.

Officials say the warm weather and lack of rain resulted in excessive use of sprinklers by homeowners and the level in the water reservoir fell so low that water use had to be curtailed to meet emergencies.

Comox water is pumped from wells and the water table has dropped due to the heat wave.

Elmer Turnbull, village clerk, said restrictions will soon be eased.

The provincial water rights branch is expected to report in three or four months on a feasibility study on a district water board.

Shore Plea Rejected

CHEMAMINUS — The new Ladysmith Ratepayers Association has voted 21 to 18 to turn down a petition from Saltair waterfront property owners asking that all crown foreshore between Ladysmith and Chemainus be reserved for recreational purposes.

The association decided to reserve final judgment until the outcome of a court case over the Mario oyster lease at Saltair.

Membership in the association, formed specifically to act on the shoreline issue, now stands at 142.

SPCA Urges Pigeon Bylaw

The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals yesterday proposed a bylaw that would require pigeon fanciers to obtain a city permit to keep birds in Victoria.

There have been several complaints in recent weeks about pigeons nesting on rooftops which were referred to the SPCA for report.

Swimming School

QUALICUM BEACH — The first swimming instructors school ever held outside a city by the B.C. Red Cross will take place June 15 to 20 in the pool at H. R. MacMillan's home.

It will be open to those 16 and over with special swimming and lifesaving training. Application forms are available from Mrs. Betty Parker and Mrs. Vera MacPhail.

Urging increased membership, he said the Jaycees express the opinion "of the most important segment of the population . . . the leaders of the future."

VICTORIA WINNER

Thursday night, Don Matheson of Victoria won the effective speaking competition and will go to the western zone finals in Calgary June 13. The winner of this competition will represent the western zone at the national finals in Kelowna later in June.

Subject of the competition was biculturalism in Canada. Other competitors were Gordon Craig, Kootenays; Al Stacey, Central B.C. and Yukon; Alec Selgo, Lower Mainland, and Bert Deslaurier, Okanagan.

Small Centres Aided

PORT ALBERNI — Cheques for 75 per cent of the assessed loss were handed out in several west Island coast communities yesterday by five members of the Alberni Valley and West Coast Disaster Fund.

Biggest cheque was $12,000 for Tofino where the under-water municipal pipeline took $15,000 damage.

Chairman Ed Benson, deputy provincial secretary Lawrence Wallace, treasurer Ray Newman and Mayors Les Hammer of Port Alberni and Fred Bishop of Alberni left Spruce Lake by plane in the morning.

for Hot Springs Cove, Tofino, Winter Harbor, Kyquoot, Zeballos and Amel Inlet.

In the Tofino-Uclulet area, the eight groups which sponsored a benefit dance in Uclulet Recreation Hall for the disaster fund raised $752.24.

They were the two recreation commissions, Tofino Legion branch, Tofino Judo Club, Uclulet Athletic Commission, Uclulet Veterans Branch, Long Beach Curling Club and Long Beach Recreation Club.

Two-Part Petition Gets No Action

PORT ALBERNI — A citizens' delegation failed to win immediate action Thursday night when it took a two-part petition to a meeting of the West Coast General Hospital Board.

The 12-member group said the children's ward is overcrowded and asked for immediate action to open the hospital's fourth floor for children. It also urged an immediate increase in nursing staff.

Completion of the fourth floor as a pediatric ward is one of the projects in a program which the board inaugurated last year with preliminary work undertaken towards forming a hospital district.

Hospital administrator Harvey Taylor said the board is sending a delegation to Victoria to discuss the plans.

Mr. Taylor said the present accommodation for children is sometimes overcrowded, but the situation has not yet been serious. He said the nursing staff is adequate.

NURSING HOME OUT

Mr. Taylor also disclosed the board has been informed by the provincial health department that the latter cannot entertain plans at this time for a long-term nursing home, one of the main features of the board's program.

The citizens' group will send copies of the petition to Health Minister Martin and will call a public meeting here soon.

Courtenay-Comox Chamber

Hornby Ferry Studied

COMOX — The Courtenay-Comox Chamber of Commerce has decided something should be done about the Hornby Island ferry situation.

The chamber, meeting in the Elk Hotel this week, asked its committee on navigable waters to study the problem and take any action needed.

Jack Parnell, of Hornby Island, a chamber guest, said islanders would like to see the service extended from the present daily cutoff at 6 p.m. to 9 or 10 p.m., at least from May to September.

He also said some of the car ferries to Hornby and Denman Island couldn't carry all the traffic and lineups were becoming more frequent.

The chamber was advised its membership drive is $1,000 short of the $50,000 objective and will end shortly.

Delegates decided to ask resort owners to help promote the Island People's week in July by sending schedules of events that week to Prairie people who have stayed at their resorts in the past two years.

Missile Fear?

Soviets Stay In Cuba

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Soviet troops have been leaving Cuba in small numbers since 1962, but the wholesale withdrawal of Russians expected May 1 has not taken place.

U.S. officials think Soviet officials may have had some second thoughts about turning over operation of their anti-aircraft missiles in Cuba to Premier Castro's forces.

At any rate, there has not been any formal word either from Moscow or Havana that the missile turnover has taken place.

REASON FOR FEAR

The Russians, however, would have good reason for fear. Giving the Cubans complete control of the missiles, believed capable of downing U.S. U2 reconnaissance planes, would, in effect, give Cuba control of Soviet foreign policy.

If a U2 were shot down, the U.S. might respond with force and Russia might be called on to aid Cuba.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Island Tug and Barge announced Friday night that its Sudbury II had arrived off the mouth of the Columbia River with the disabled Nationalist Chinese freighter Tai Sing.

Ulbricht Hints

Something Cooking In German Issue?

MOSCOW (AP)—East Germany's Communist boss Walter Ulbricht pledged Friday night to follow Kremlin policy and said he had come here to "discuss a number of political problems."

He hinted that some new Soviet initiative on the Berlin and German questions were in the wind when he told guests at a Kremlin banquet Premier Khrushchev tendered him.

"The policy worked out by the leadership of the Communist party of the Soviet Union and the Soviet government in the struggle for peaceful coexistence is of greatest importance for our people."

"We live in a country from whose territory two world wars were begun. It is in our country, in Germany, in the German Democratic Republic, that one must show how this policy is being applied in the most difficult spot in Europe."

Ulbricht received his usual ceremonial welcome on arrival but it seemed a shade warmer than is customary.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Yugoslavian-based company outbid a Canadian consortium and won a $4,000,000 contract for work on the giant Peace River hydro project.

Malaysian 'Summit'

JAKARTA (Reuters)—Salvador Lopez, special Philippines envoy in the Malaysian crisis, told reporters Friday night a summit meeting on the situation would be held in Tokyo in June.

Lopez also said the Philippines, Indonesia and Malaysia would formally and separately ask Thailand to verify the withdrawal of Indonesian guerrillas from Malaysia.

The Filipino envoy conferred for 45 minutes with President Sukarno.

Another Copper Strike!

FLIN FLON (CP)—Two veteran prospectors are reported to have made a major copper ore discovery in the Cranberry Portage area 30 miles southeast of this Manitoba community.

Philip Bachnick and Harry Howell, both of The Pas, made the discovery on a trap line they have operated in the area for a number of years.

The two registered 36 claims May 13 and were reported to have sold options on the claims to Kenare Petroleum Corp. Ltd. of Calgary which has a mine exploration office here.

Mr. Bachnick and Mr. Howell shared in the original discovery of nickel that later was developed into the huge International Nickel company complex at Thompson, Man.

The find at Cranberry

Portage has created excitement here, with at least four companies at the scene and several hundred claims staked within the last few days.

Michael Ogden, a consulting geologist for Kenare, was reported to be on the property formulating a development program.

Reports said that preliminary assays on the ore showed 18 per cent copper and .04 ounces of gold.

FRANKFURT (UPI)—Former Gestapo comrades and victims laughed derisively Friday when defendant Oswald Kaduk denied at the Auschwitz war crimes trial that "little me" ever did anything wrong at the notorious Nazi death camp.

Survivors have labeled Kaduk the "most brutal man" in Auschwitz.

He is alleged to have burned children alive and enjoyed breaking the necks of inmates with a pickaxe.

His outburst came during testimony by Wladyslaw Fekiel, a Polish doctor and educator, in the trial of Kaduk and 21 other former guards charged with taking part in the murders of up to 4,000,000 persons in the camp during the Second World War.

"Why, there was no harassment of prisoners," Kaduk shouted, "and even if there was, the prisoners brought it on themselves."

Co-defendant Wilhelm Boger, alleged "master torturer" of Auschwitz, erupted into laughter. He laughed so hard tears ran down his sunken cheeks.

"Little me? I never hit any-

Former inmates sitting in the spectators section roared with laughter. Boger guffawed and the other co-defendants grinned.

Grits Wave Flag

Filibuster Means Election

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's maple leaf flag proposal has stirred a wave of election speculation in Ottawa.

One backbench Liberal MP says his party will go to the people if the Conservative opposition wages a filibuster to delay action in the government's flag resolution.

For their part, the Conservatives are said to be ready and eager to battle the issue through to an election.

Pearson:

CALL ELECTION

Behind this element lies Prime Minister Pearson's declaration that this minority government considers its flag resolution a matter of confidence. If defeated on it, he would resign and call a general election.

Apart from the flag dispute, strong sentiment for a federal election this year has been building up among backbench Liberal MPs.

NO INDICATION

However, there is no indication backbenchers are influencing the stated position of Mr. Pearson that his government should operate as if it commanded a majority in the 265-member House and that only parliamentary defeat on a confidence issue should bring on an election.

"If we can't get our program through Parliament we might as well go to the country, find out where we stand, and see whether the people will elect a majority government," says one backbench Liberal.

GENERAL REACTION

He indicated a belief he was voicing a fairly general reaction among Liberal MPs to the slow parliamentary pace of the government's legislative program.

The Liberals now hold 127 House seats against 96 Conservatives, 17 New Democrats, 13 Creditistes and nine Social Credit. There are three vacancies due to deaths of two Liberals and one Conservative.

There's more than frustration behind backbench Liberal agitation for a vote.

PROFITOUS TIME

Some argue that now is a propitious time for a government to hold an election, with the country's economy humming in high gear.

Some Liberals — and some MPs from other parties share their view — would like an election before the government's projected redistribution becomes effective and carves up their constituencies.
